FORTY-THIRD YEAR. LINCOLN, NEBRASKA, SATURDAY, MARCH 15, 1924. TWO CENTS.

CORPSE MUTILATED

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN TRUNK

OGDEN, Utah, March 15. — The mutilated body of an unknown woman with head almost severed, jammed into the bottom of a trunk was discovered at the union station today.

The trunk was checked as excess baggage on a ticket from Denver to Weed, Cal., and the authorities are now looking for a man who gave the name of Smith, suspected of having shipped the trunk. Doctors believed the woman was killed Friday.

BYOL IS NEW SEA SIGN

Bring Your Own Liquor to Be the Slogan of Liners, Since Seizure of Orduna.

NEW YORK, March 15.—"BYOL" is going into the nomenclature of the big ocean liners alongside SOS.

That is to say, as a result of hte recent seizure of the Royal Mail liner, Orduna, British steamship companies are passing the unofficial tip to traveling Americans to "Bring your own liquor" if they can't wait until their boat passes the twelve-mile limit.

Foreign liners have been opening their bars soon after hoisting anchor, but when federal authorities seized a nice $3,000,000 boat like the Orduna other ship owners figure they can't be too careful.

The Orduna sailed for Hamburg today, free on a bond of $1,000,000 following her seizure by agents of the treasury department and the customs for violation of the federal prohibition and narcotic laws. Resumption of the libel action against the steamer, one of the most important of the Royal Mail service, is scheduled for April when the ship will be in New York again.

Testimony at yesterday's hearing showed that members of the crew of the Orduna had been engaged in bootlegging for more than three years. No testimony was adduced, towever, to show that any responsible officer of the ship was aware of the illicit liquor and narcotic sales.

Thirty-five hundred American tourists sailed on ten ships during the day and, according to word going the rounds in steamship circles, not one of the 3,500 will get even within smelling distance of a drink until the liners are across the twelve-mile limit.

Mine Worker Freed Of Murder Charge

FAYETTEVILLE, W. Va., March 15.—C. Frank Keeney, president of district No. 17, United Mine Workers of America, was acquitted by a jury in Fayette circuit court here today on a charge of accessory in the murder of John Gore, deputy sheriff of Logan county, during the armed march of miners in 1921. The jury was out one and one-half hours.

TALKS TO GOD?

Rev. A. Edwin Keigwin.

In the "modern, materialistic, skeptic" city of New York there is a man who says he has literally "talked with God"—even as Saul on the Damascus road—no fewer than six times. Rev. A. Edwin Keigwin, pastor of the West End Presbyterian church, says that each time the voice was as clear as if any human were speaking.

SCHOOL NEEDS PRESENTED

Superintendent Lefler Says Funds Are Inadequate Because of Increased Enrollment.

The democratic luncheon club listened to Supt. M. C. Lefler tell of civic problems in the proper financing of the city schools, at the meeting held Saturday noon at the Grand hotel. Mr. Lefler illustrated his address with numerous charts thrown upon a screen. He showed that the inadequacy of the present school revenue was due to the disproportion increase in school enrolment to the increase in the population of the city. He said the present rate of taxation for school purposes is 13.1 mills. The board is asking for a 15-mill levy.

Considerable of the growth of the city was ascribed by Mr. Lefler to the remarkable educational facilities offered. "Lincoln is an outstanding city in education," he said, "since everything in the way of educational facility is found, from the kindergarten to post graduate courses at the universities of the vicinity. For this reason the city has a rather highly selected citizenry, many of the residents having located here for the purpose of eduacting their children."

The growth of the city from 1910 to 1923 was said to have been 57 per cent, while during the same period, the school enrollment had increased 57 per cent, and the high school enrollment 137 per cent.

Announcement was made that a committee from the club would be appointed for the Bryan meeting Wednesday evening at the Auditorium and all members were asked to attend.

ENDS LIFE WITH POISON

Fullerton Farmer Takes Poison at Neighbor's Home.

COLUMBUS, Neb., March 15.—John Yelli, forty years old, Fullerton farmer, died at an Omaha hospital as the result of poison taken in a fit of despondency. Yelli, taken ill suddenly during the night while staying at the Charles Kula home, was rushed to Omaha and later an empty vial was found under the bed he had occupied. He admitted drinking the contents of the vial.

QUINBY TELLS ABOUT DEALS

UNDERSTOOD SMITH ARRANGED MATTER OF FILMS.

Exhibited Picture in New York and Made $75,000, But Was Stopped by Department of Justice Agent.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—A long and rather fruitless attempt was made by the Daugherty probe committee to get F. C. Quinby, a New York moving picture man, to say that Jesse Smith, Daugherty's intimate, had obtained "protection" at Washington for persons interested in transporting and showing the Dempsey-Carpentier fight films in violation of the law.

All Quinby would say was that Jap Muma, an employe of E. B. McLean's Cincinnati Enquirer, Bill Orr, Ike Martin, Tex Rickard and himself had an agreement whereby the films were to be made and shown under an arrangement which Quinby testified Muma outlined to him. Despite repeated efforts the committee was unable to get Quinby to say that he had been told that Jesse Smith had arranged the matter in Washington.

Paul Howland, Daugherty's counsel, brought out that the plan agreed on did not prevent Quinby being arrested and fined Quinby also stated that after he paid his fine he went on showing the pictures and made $5,000 in New York on them.

In other cities the same procedure was followed, Quinby said.

Wheeler read a report of Holdridge stating that President Harding, Secretary Hughes, Postmaster General New and George B. Christian jr., former secretary to President Harding, were present at the private showing of the picture.

The lawyer who, according to Quinby, was to arrange for interstate commerce transportation of the films was Alfred R. Urion of Washington, a close friend of Attorney General Daugherty.

"Did Muma ever tell you that the attorney general said 'if you fellows put this across you ought to get a big cut'?"

"I did not know that any such suggestion came from the attorney general."

Navarro Asked Questions.

"The plan was operating nicely when Agent Navarro began asking embarrassing questions. Do you remember that incident?"

"Yes."

Quinby said that he exhibited the picture himself in New York, was fined $1,000 and thirty days later showed the film and made $75,000. He stopped this when a department of justice agent named Navarro interfered.

Senator Wheeler finally succeeded in bringing out that attorney's fees and expense of exhibiting the films were deducted from the same price.

In the case of Chicago this deduction was $35,000 which Jap Muma claimed was too high, Quinby said.

"Did Muma give you to understand that it had been fixed in Washington thru money or influence? Isn't that so?"

"Washington was never mentioned when Muma told me to go ahead and show the pictures."

"Now tell me, didn't you know they were to use their influence with Burns, Daughtery and the rest?"

"They told me if I would follow their plan it would be all right."

Paul Howland, attorney for Daugherty at this point asked:

"Whatever may have been your first opinion of what you haped to accomplish thru Muma, you did not escape prosecution yourself?"

"No."

P. C. Baldwin, of San Antonio, Tex., former department of justice agent and now a captain in the Texas rangers, was called. He said he went into the department of justice in October, 1916, and resigned in March, 1923.

"You were in Del Rio, Tex., between August, 1918 and 1921?"

"Yes."

"Preventing neutrality violations?"

He replied that he was active in preventing shipment of arms and made reports to the department of justice.

Baldwin said persons he referred to as "they" were attempting to smuggle arms to Mexican revolutionists.

"Do you know what Americans they were working with?"

"One in particular was William Hansen of San Antonio, Tex."

"Who was he?"

"He had just finished working with the Fall committee."

"He then started in to aid the revolutionaries?"

"Yes, that was my understanding."

"And you reported the matter to the department of justice?"

"Yes."

"What was the general tenor of the statements?"

"That Captain Hansen had made arrangements with certain high officials in Washington whereby the United States government would sanction a revolution in Mexico, if the right people were at the head."

Baldwin then added a voluntary statement to the effect that in reference to violations of the postal laws and other laws, "we were supposed to report them to the various government departments but in reference to liquor laws, we were to take no notice.

Baldwin said he reported "delinquency and irregularities" of a certain district attorney at Dallas in 1922. One was a conspiracy to impersonate a federal officer.

Alleged Whisky Ring.

He said a John T. Anderson and two other members of an alleged whisky ring, raided a house where the liquor was stored when a feud broke out among the whisky runners on the border. Others in the ring complained to the state district attorney, who referred them to government officials.

"Who was attorney general then?"

"Palmer."

"And who was the head of the bureau of investigation?"

"Mr. Flynn."

"And the order has been in effect ever since?"

"Yes sir."

The witness told of receiving liquor in his office at Dallas in 1923 and turning it over to federal authorities.

"Soon after there was a good deal of drinking around the federal building," he said. "There was an investigation about it. Some citizens wired Daugherty to ask him to investigate the conduct of the district attorney's office."

Wheeler put into the record an order on January 7, 1923 issued by Attorney General Daugherty, advising all special agents thereafter to refrain from investigating United States marshals or district attorneys.

Paul Howland, Daugherty's attorney, began to cross-examine the witness. "Haven't there been a large number of mail fraud prosecutions in the Dallas district?" he asked.

"Yes, that's a matter I overlooked" said Baldwin.

"Tell us about it," said Wheeler.

Baldwin said that a prominent Texas republican politician had given him the impression that he intended to "make the fraudulent oil men divide up their millions."

"It was my opinion that they did not intend to prosecute these stock promoters at all." Baldwin said.

"In other words they were trying to blackmail them?" asked Wheeler.

"Absolutely."

Howland brought out that the mail fraud cases were later prosecuted by a special assistant attorney, but not by the district attorney for the district.

Wheeler directed that a subpoena be issued for D. W. Dawkins, postal inspector at Fort Worth, Texas.

After Baldwin had concludde, the committee adjourned until 10 a. m. Monday.

FRANC VALUE INCREASES

Poincare's Victory in Senate Brings Them at 21 Francs to the Dollar.

PARIS, March 15.—The franc increased in value sharply today following Premier Poincare's victory in the senate, dollars opening at 21 francs each and the pound sterling at 90 francs.

The senate at 12:45 a. m. today adopted the sections of the government's financial program giving Premier Poincare the right to effect economies which, it is estimated, will amount to one billion francs a year by decree.

The vote was 154 to 139 and came after an impassioned speech of nearly two hours by the premier in which he warmly defended his financial program.

The measures already have been adopted by the chamber of deputies.

LONDON, March 15.—The French franc opened very strong here today at 89 francs 90 centimes to the pound sterling. Confidence in the franc already improved by news of a credit of more than $100,000,000 to the bank of France in New York, was strengthened further by the victory of the Poincare government in the senate in Paris last night.

PRINCE OF WALES HURT

LONDON, March 15.—Riding in the Arborfeld cross country steeplechase, the prince of Wales today was thrown from his horse with such violence that he was rendered unconscious and had to be carried from the field on a stretcher to a first aid hospital.

The prince was kicked in the face by his steed and his features were covered with blood as attendants carried him out.

First reports, however, were to the effect that his injuries were not serious.

This was the second fall "Smiling Eddie" had suffered during the day. In the earlier race he had taken a tumble, but arose from the ground unhurt.

Prince Henry was thrown to the ground twice. On the second occasion, he crashed into a spectator with a bicycle. His horse received lacerations, but Henry tumbled to the earth unhurt.

The prince of Wales entered the races still not fully recovered from the effects of his last disastrous fall, altho physicians had reported his broken shoulder blade was mending rapidly.

SHEA FACES FIVE COUNTS

Pleaded Not Guilty to Liquor Charges and Case Continued—Is Third Time Up.

John Shea was charged with five liquor counts in Justice Stevens' court Saturday morning, and pleaded not guilty to each count. His case was continued to March 21 and he was released on $1,000 bond, James and Ruby Shea going security.

Shea has been fined twice before on illegal possession charges and now faces a possible sentence of a year in the penitentiary, if charges are proved. The five counts are: illegal possession on two different dates, sale of liquor on two dates; illegal possession of liquor. He was arrested March 11 by state officers.

LIVES LOST IN TORNADO

TRAIN BLOWN INTO RIVER AT BAREILLY, INDIA.

Forty or Fifty Passengers Believed Drowned—Fifty Others Are Reported to Be Among the Injured.

LONDON, March 15.—Between forty and fifty passengers are reported to have been drowned when a train crossing a bridge three miles from Bareilly, India, was struck by a tornado, according to a News Agency dispatch from Delhi.

About fifty others are reported to have been injured. Three coaches of the train were blown into the river and submerged and two others toppled onto the river bed, imprisoning their passengers.

Owing to the fact that many bodies are still under water, it is impossible to estimate the death toll with any degree of accuracy.

FOR BURGLARY INSURANCE

Louis F. Langhorst, Candidate for State Treasurer, an Officer of New Omaha Organization.

Louis F. Langhorst of Elmwood, democratic candidate for state treasurer, was at the capitol Saturday not as a politician, but as an organizer of the Merchants Mutual Burglary Insurance company of Omaha. C. H. Clancy is president of the new company, Mr. Langhorst is vice president, T. W. Wilson is secretary and Sam Patterson is treasurer. George Tunison, with the officers, form the board of directors. All are residents of Omaha except Mr. Langhorst. The officers called in person on Governor Bryan whose insurance department has approved the articles of incorporation. As the company is a mutual organization no capital stock is required. Two hundred members have already subscribed. Securities are deposited by the company with the state insurance bureau.

FIND BABY IN A DUMP

Sioux City Boys Discover Corpse of Three-Day-Old Infant Among Junk.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., March 15.—Police today were running down a clue that they believed would lead to the identity of the slayers of a baby girl three days old, found at the dump in the municipal hog yard here late yesterday afternoon.

The infant was found by small boys searching the dump yard for "junk." Police found the infant wrapped in newspapers with a cord, taken from an undergarment drawn tightly round the baby's neck. Coroner Robbins said death undoubtedly was caused by strangulation.

It is the theory of city officials that some garbage man loaded the baby on his wagon and hauled it to the dump. All city scavangers will be closely questioned today. The string may lead to the idnetity of the slayers, police said.

COUNTY AFTER BACK TAXES

Railroad Company Seven Years Behind in Tax Payment.

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., March, 15.—County Treasurer M. L. Flanagin has issued a distress warrant for unpaid taxes of the Kansas City & Northwestern railroad, passing thru the west part of this county, and has delivered the same to Sheriff Avery. The warrant is to cover taxes on the road, which have not been paid for seven years. The warrant is not collectible at the present time because of the litigation pending, but it serves as a necessary step toward foreclosure, which will be taken by County Attorney Elmer F. Witte. The total amount of taxes and interest due the county is $33,853.95. The road has not been in operation for a number of years and various efforts have been made, unsuccessfully, to put it back on its feet.

MRS. WALLICK LOSES SUIT.

The phonograph for which Mrs. Ethel Wallick, widow of Wallace G. Wallick, was suing Peter McCann of Belmont, Neb., is to be retained by Mr. McCann, according to a decision handed down by Justice Stevens, Saturday morning. Mrs. Wallick alleged that the machine had been given Mr. McCann for storage and had later been sold by Mr. Wallick at a time just prior to his death. She says it was sold without her consent and that it was her property. Mr. McCann paid $60 for it. Wallick killed himself after shooting and killing Judge Morning.

DISRESPECT TO WHISTLER.

PARIS, (By Mail).—American artists are incensed at what appears to be discrimination on the part of the French who have relegated to a small Paris museum Whistler's famous painting, 'Arrangement in Gray and Black," a portrait of his mother. According to established custom, a decade after the death of the artist his best paintings are removed to the Louvre. Whistler has been dead two decades.

HIGH OFFICIAL IS INCRIMINATED

CHICAGO, March 15.—Evidence is in the hands of federal operatives here incriminating a former high prohibition official for the district including Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin in a $1,000,000 "liquor steal" it was made known today.

Fully twenty-five persons are to be named in federal indictments in the theft of 9,000 cases of bonded government whisky from the Sibley warehouse, it was stated. A former official of the warehouse, which was under government bond, is also involved, it was reported.

Theft of the wihsky was covered up by taking permit records from registered mails. The liquor was sold to Chicago druggists and bootleggers, federal agents say. Part of it is also alleged to have been distributed thru mid-western states by a "booze ring."

ETHYLENE GAS EXPLODES

Patient Dead and Doctor Burned When Anaesthetic Blows Up During Operation.

BALTIMORE, March 15.—Bernard Cohen, a patient is dead and Dr. H. Warren Buckley is suffering from slight burns today as the result of a mysterious explosion of ethylene gas in an operating room of Union Memorial hospital here.

At the time of the explosion, Cohen had just undergone a minor operation for a carbuncle and his wife was preparing for a major operation.

Dr. Richard H. Follis, who operated on Cohen, and Dr. Louis P. Hamburger, who was present as Mrs. Cohen's physician, altho having nothing to do with the operation, both say the explosion was without precedent, so far as they know, in surgery. They explain that ethylene gas has been used as an anaesthetic for only about two years.

According to Coroner John J. Morrissey, Cohen died in his room less than an hour after the operation as a result of a rupture of a blood vessel in the lung caused by the explosion.

Dr. Buckley had administered the ethylene gas. It had been followed with nitrous oxide, the familiar "laughing gas" of dentists. The carbuncle had been removed and Dr. Follis was cauterizing the wound with an instrument which consisted of a platinum point, heated to incandescence.

"Suddenly," said Dr. Hamburger, "there was the noise of an explosion accompanied by white fumes. It is impossible to tell just what happened."

Dr. Buckley's face was slightly burned.

DR. EDWARDS CONVICTED

Omaha Physician Found Guilty of Causing Death of Lillian Holman and Unborn Babe.

OMAHA, March 15.—Dr. F. A. Edwards was found guilty of causing the death of Lillian Holman, nineteen, and her unborn babe by performing an illegal operation in district court here Friday night. The jury was out more than three hours and five ballots were taken. The penalty is one to ten years in the penitentiary.

ALBERT BURSON IS DEAD

Prominent Illinois Publisher Passes Away.

LITCHFIELD, Ill., March 15.—Albert Burson, fifty-two, editor and publisher of the Litchfield News Herald, died here today, the result of a stroke of paralysis. He was prominent in Masonic circles. He was the former president of the Standard Life Insurance company. Burson was a member of the Illinois press association, Inland Press association and various others newspaper organizations.

DOESN'T FANCY LANGUAGE.

LOS ANGELES, March 15.—The race is growing up to be one-syllable conversationalists, warns Pierce Lawton, writer, of London and Paris seeking diversion in California. Lawton declares that progress in literary pursuits in America cannot survive unless the "studied carelessness" present in American writings is eliminated.

"While it is true that the American press is without doubt the greatest in the world so far as ingenuity and power is concerned," Lawton said, "it is equally true that many of your revolutionary newspapers exert a destructive influence over readers.

"I have noticed while touring the United States that many of these newspapers actually make it a policy to present their reading matter in plain, "public highway" English, that is to say, they attempt to construct their phaseology so that the moron may understand thoroly every phrase of it," Lawton said.

Avoca Youths Draw Fines.

NEBRASKA CITY, March 15.—Wilmer Martin, Dewey Cottingham and Henry Jourgeson, Avoca youths, who were arrested on a charge of the illegal possession of intoxicating liquor early Thursday morning by Sheriff Ryder, after he had pursued them believeing them to be chicken thieves, were each fined $100 and costs in county court by Judge Bischof. The young men are from eighteen to twenty-four years old. They were unable to pay the fines and costs and are still in the county jail.

Killed by Corn Sheller.

HANOVER, Kas., March 15.—Charles Walters, forty-two years old, farmer southeast of here, was accidentally caught in the fly-wheel of a gasoline corn sheller while shelling corn on his farm Friday. He was working about the wheel when his clothing became tangled in the shaft key, which protruded about an inch, lifted from the ground and whirled about, his head striking the lower framework of the sheller, crushing his skull. He is survived by a wife and four small children.

Locate Lost Property.

NEBRASKA CITY, March 15.—The art exhibit at the Nebraska City high school opened this afternoon with a large attendance. School chilren are taking part in the programs which are given Friday and Staurday nights. The proceeds of the exhibit will go toward the purchase of pictures for study in the city schools. The display is being sponsored by the Lincoln Fine Arts shop.

ATTACHED TO HIS SILVER.

LURAY, Va., (By Mail).—In every meal but three in the last twenty-two years A. E. Flinn, has used the same knife and fork. Both the knife and fork were found by Mr. Flinn, one in the east end of Luray and the other in the west end of town. The knife and fork have almost been worn out of all semblance of themselves, but it would require a fabulous price for the owner to part with them.

Open Benefit Art Exhibit.

NEBRASKA CITY, March 15.—A large quantity of burlap belonging to the Wilson Re-Enforced Concrete company, of this city, a large amount of rust-proof wire, the property of the Morton-Gregson company, army blankets and tools were recovered today by police and county officers on the premises of a family in the eastern part of this city. The authorities are still working on the discovery at a late hour this afternoon.

ORDERED TO IGNORE LAW

Federal Agents Paid No Heed to Border.

FIGHT PICTURES "FIXED"

Part of Means' Testimony Is Corroborated.

Tex Rickard Had "Understanding" With Washington, F. C. Quinby of New York Declares.

HAVE RESERVED SEATS.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Senators are to have special seats reserved at the senate investigation of Attorney General Daughertl.

At the opening of the hearing today, Seantor Ashurst, Arizona, announced that early arrivals would not be permitted to hold choice seats behind the committee table.

A special row of chairs was put there and senators wishing to listen to the testimony were escorted thither.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Federal agents were ordered not to pay any attention to cases involving liquor law violations along the Mexican border, P. C. Baldwin, a Texas ranger, former department of justice agent, told the senate committee investigating Attorney General Daugherty today.

Baldwin, who said his transfer from the border was ordered because he was "too active in stopping smuggling of arms into Mexico, declared that federal prohibition enforcement along the Mexican boundary is such a joke that he actually caught a dry agent returning a still to a bootlegger. He arrested the agent, he said, but tho two grand juries have considered the matter, no indictments have ever been returned. He said Daugherty's brother-in-law, a United States marshal, was consulted in this matter by the federal district attorney.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The Daugherty committee beat back today over the trail of alleged graft bared by Gaston B. Means.

Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, chief prosecutor, sought corroboration of the testimony given by Means regarding alleged traffic in films of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight and alleged over-charging of the government by the Standard Aircraft corporation.

F. C. Quinby of New York, a motion picture man, was the first witness called. Quinby said he personally took pictures of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight.

"Did you ever have a contract with Tex Rickard with reference to producing and shipping of the Dempsey-Carpentier films?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"I entered into contract, June 10, 1921, to produce and sell them.

"Where was it at first intended to display them?"

"In New Jersey."

"Did you later have a conversation with Rickard with reference to displaying the pictures in other states?"

"Yes, Rickard said he had had some men come to him with a plan whereby they could be shown outside of New Jersey."

"Who was that?"

"Jap Muma, Ike Martin and Bill Orr."

Quinby identified Jap Muma as a reporter on the Cincinnati Enquirer, E. B. McLean's newspaper and said Ike Martin was from Cincinnati. He did not identify Bill Orr.

"Did you enter some agreement?" continued Wheeler.

"Yes. They were to cooperate in selling these pictures in other states."

"Did Rickard give you to understand that the matter had been arranged in Washington so you could not be molested?"

"He told me plans had been so arranged."

"Was Jesse Smith's name mentioned?"

"Orr spoke of Smith as a friend of Daugherty's."

Jesse Smith's name came up "in a general way," the witness said, and it had "nothing in particular" to do with the agreement regarding the film."

"Did you ever know Ralph Navarro a department of justice agent?"

Made Life Interesting.

"Yes. He made life very interesting for me."

Here the witness volunteered that he had understood the whole deal was legal.

"I fully expected that everything was all right."

"You were given to understand that?" Wheeler asked.

"Yes."

"You sold the pictures to retail dealers in various states?"

"Yes, to one man in each state."

"Then it was arranged that the pictures should be shown before some veterans' association first?"

"That was up to the bureau."

PRICE PROBE OF GASOLINE

CLOSED SESSION OF ATTORNEYS GENERAL COMMITTEE.

O. S. Spillman of Nebraska Is Chairman of Conference Which Investigates Petroleum Industry.

CHICAGO, March 15.—Probe of gasoline prices, ordered some time ago by the national attorneys general association, will be continued at a closed session of the executive committee of the attorneys general here today.

The committee was appointed at a general convention last October to investigate various phases of the crude petroleum industry and to eliminate expenses which increase the cost of gasoline.

FROST MAKES FIRST BENCH APPEARANCE

Jurist Appointed to Fill Morning Vacancy in Equity Court, Assumes Duties of Office Saturday Forenoon.

District Judge Frost, who was appointed by the governor to succeed the late Judge Morning, appeared actively in office for the first time, Saturday forenoon.

About twenty youngsters, ranging in years from seven to seventeen, confronted the judge with their explanations of youthful escapades. One boy had been sent to move his uncle's car and had taken it for a ride instead. He got stuck in a car track and couldn't get out and appropriated a Buick with which to go for help. He was picked up with the Buick in his possession.

A second complaint was that a group of boys had sent in a false call for a messenger boy and when he arrived they attacked him and damaged his wheel.

In addition to these cases the judge heard many reports from old offenders who were seeking to redeem themselves thru good conduct. No final action was taken in any of the cases presented. The judge took them all under submission.

POLICE BREAK UP PARTY

Seven Colored Party Goers Jailed Following Raid and Whisky for Evidence Secured.

Seven colored persons were jailed at 4 20 Saturday morning following a complaint from a neighbor in the vicinity of 2238 T, that the merrymakers were disturbing the peace. Enough hooch was seized to furnish evidence.

MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE

SCOUTS AND CAMPFIRE GIRLS ENLIST SERVICES.

Word of Community Chest Drive in Pamphlet Form Carried to Business Houses and to Residences.

The approaching drive for the community chest was given wide publicity Saturday thru circulation by boy scouts and campfire girls of 8,000 pamphlets thru the down town and resident sections. The city hall, headquarters of both organizations, was a human, juvenile bee hive. Approximately sixty scouts in full uniform and fifty girls, representative of nine campfires, enlisted their services. The boys distributed 5,000 of the pamphelts in the business section while the girls directed their attention to distribution of 3,000 pamphlets in the resident sections.

The 1924 drive opens Monday. Thirteen participating organizations will take active part. At least eleven of these will have store window displays. Superintendent McClain of the humane society in charge of this feature, announced the following scheduled displays for Monday's opening:

Jewish Welfare Society at Gugenheim Bros.

Boy Scouts at Magee's.

Campfire girls at Orkin Bros and at the G. A. Crancer store.

City mission at Fred Schmidt & Bro. store.

Red Cross at Mayer Bros.

Social Welfare society at Hardy's.

Junior league at Gold & Co.

Y. M. C. A. at Latsch Bros.

Y. W. C. A. at the H. Herpolsheimer and Rudge & Guenzel stores.

St. Vincent DePaul and the Society of Friendless will be active in the drive but without displays.

The community chest was placed in Lincoln one year ago for the purpose of placing philanthropy and welfare work on a basis of economy with operation along efficient and business lines. One purpose being to eliminate duplication. The total amount required for 1924 for the thirteen participating organizations is $125,000 as against $100,000 raised in 1923. The apparent increase is more or less misleading since last year's financing, in a number of instances, was needed for but a portion of the year. Contained in each pamphlet distributed Saturday is a brief sketch of the activities and membership of the several participating groups.

STORY MUCH EXAGGERATED

No Great Sum to Be Spent on the Omaha Depot, Report From Omaha Reveals.

The report from Omaha that the Burlington is to spend $100,000 or more on the Omaha depot building, rebuilding, rearranging and repairing, is said to be fiction. The fact is that the company is going to rearrange the interior of the Omaha depot somewhat to give more room for the lunch counter which has always occupied cramped quarters, and will do the usual spring house cleaning. A great sum will not be spent on the Omaha station. Terminal changes there may be made eventually to give more track room.

General Manager Flynn is given as authority by Burlington men at Lincoln for denying the story that any large sum is to be spent on the Omaha passenger depot this year.

OLD LINCOLN ON DISPLAY

HISTORY OF CITY PORTRAYED IN AN EXHIBIT.

Lincoln in 1874 and Lincoln in 1924 are graphically portrayed in the pictures and relics displayed at the chamber of commerce in commemoration of that body's fiftieth anniversary. Hundreds of people viewed the exhibit Saturday and more will see it in the evening, when the chamber gives a program in honor of the day.

The Union Pacific came in just under the wire with a small replica of the Abraham Lincoln car built for the president in 1864 and used for his funeral. Several paintings taken from the original car are shown. This car was parked in the Omaha shops in 1869, where E. H. Harriman discovered it some years later, bereft of much of its furnishings. It was loaned to a circus and destroyed by fire shortly after. Another Union Pacific item is a poste radvertising the grand opening of the "Platte Valley," May 10, 1869. This was the road from Omaha to San Francisco.

aDily and yearly history is portrayed in the large exhibit of the Nebraska Press association, compiled by Henry Allen Brainerd. This includes photographs of the first lady members, admitted in 1896, among whom is Willa Sibert Cather of the Red Cloud Republican and the Nebraska State Journal. This display covers three large tables in the annex. The Journal is showing some of its 1874 files and a city directory for 1881 as an example of early printing. Th elatest example is a panorama of the university stadium, made last November 10.

The state historical society has a large display, taken from its museum on the university campus. The university is showing many photographs of buildings, faculty members and campus views, old and new. The city schools have a model school room of today in the northeast corner of the annex, and one of fifty years ago in the northwest. The latter is equipped with benches, slates, a small square blackboard, old fashioned desk, supboard and dinner bell, a round iron stove and huge woodbox, and the traditional water bucket and wash pan. Between the two is a display of city school buildings, old and new, with pictures of the first high school clas sto graduate, in 1879. There were seven girls and one boy—the latter could not be induced to be in the photograph.

The various Nebraska capitols loom large in the displays, and photograuphs of early day Lincoln are endless. Frank DuTeil has a large collection, including many views from the dome of the old capitol. The first house in Lincoln, on Judge Luke Lavender's homestead in 1867, is represented in a photograph. The homestead included Capitol square.

The traction company is showing pictures of mule cars and their drivers, two of whom are still in service in other capacities: Frank Marvin, dispatcher, and Sam Wayne, register repair man. Harvey Rathbone has loaned three street car tokens of 1885, worth five cents at that time.

The history of the city library is set forth in pictures, circulars, advertisements, catalogs and books.

Personal relics enough to fill a good sized musum have been loaned, many of them far ante-dating the year 1874. The wooden ball from hte dome of the first capitol is there, alongside an ox yoke and a side saddle, and there are hundreds of articles of house furnishings in display.

M'CORMACK CANCELS DATE

OMAHA, March 15.—The engagement of John McCormack, noted singer to appear here for a concert on April 10 was cancelled today. McCormack wired local promoters that he is sailing for France to be with his wife and daughter who were injured a few days ago in a railroad wreck at Lyons, France.

CLIMAX OF CELEBRATION

GROWTH OF INDUSTRIAL LINCOLN IS EMPHASIZED.

Chamber of Commerce Anniversary Marked by a Program in Which Organization Ex- Is Shown.

When the board of trade was organized on March 15, 1874, its entire plant for many years consisted of a few books of minutes kept by the secretary.

When the half century was reached it was celebrated with a program in a large modern building owned by the club. Three large luncheons were in progress simultaneously serving four hundred people. The building was a hive of activity. If these things interfered slightly with the regular program the handicap was borne with patience because the bustle was convincing evidence of the size and importance of the organization.

The noonday program filled the main dining room with members and

CANDIDATES MEET OPENLY

BRYAN AND STERLING CONFER AT THE CAPITOL.

Omaha Night Clerk Says He Has Only One Man to Beat in the Primary for Governor.

Governor Bryan received a call Saturday from George W. Sterling of Omaha, republican candidate for governor. The two candidates met in the governor's public reception room. It was a case of open covenants openly arrived at. Mr. Sterling is not entirely unacquainted with Lincoln and its people. He was engaged for seven years in the humble capacity of fumigator for Health Officer Rohde, and many is the house he has scented up with formaldehyde, following an epidemic of diphtheria.

"It's no disgrace to work," he explained when he shook hands with Governor Bryan.

"Your support will be greatly appreciated," said Candidate Sterling to Governor Bryan. "It certainly will, I assure you.

"I'll give that my careful consideration," said Governor Bryan, "and in the meantime if you have a change of heart or decide to reform you can vote for me."

"The candidates are all gentlemen," said Mr. Sterling, "all gentlemen, I assure you, every one of them—gentlemen. I notice governor that your platform issued Friday coincides with mine. It was good, I assure you; it's just like a part of mine.

"We might agree between us to be for each other at the primary," said Governor Bryan, "but if we don't hear from each other before then it's all off. Is that all right? And in the meantime you consider that matter of reform and change of heart."

"I was fourth in the race two years ago," said Sterling, "and this year I have only one man to beat in the primaries—Adam McMullen."

SPRING GYPSIES

BY FAY STEVENSON

New Love Serial of Two Office Girls Who Answered the Call of the Open.

Copyright, 1924, (New York Evening World). Press Publishing Company.

—Tennyson.

They're Off.

And in the spring a young girl's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of green fields, pure air, robins, violets, budding trees and just getting out in the open. At least that is the way Dolores Hammond and Pansy Bartholomew felt about it and the more they thought about being cooped up behind a desk, the stuffy office, the boss and the office force, the more determined they were to just quit their jobs and hike.

It didn't happen in a minute of course. It took them a whole Sunday to decide whether they would dare give up $25 a week and just start out in the world with a few dollars in their purses.

Dolores was eighteen and pretty despite her freckles and slightly tip-tilted nose. She was an orphan and had supported herself for the last six months since her mother died, leaving her with little ready cash and the message, "Be good, dear, and it will all come out right."

Her chum, Pansy Bartholomew, also eighteen and pretty enough for the stage, lived with her mother and three brothers. And those brothers and a dictatorial employer were just the reason why Pansy wanted to break away and see life for herself.

"I'm sick and tired of kidding and scolding," declared Pansy as the two girls walked along the bridle path of Central park. "Brothers and a boss are getting on my nerves."

"Oh look!" exclaimed Dolores, pointing her index finger in the direction of a picturesque log.

"A robin!" cried Pansy. "The first this spring!"

The two girls walked along silently each brooding, wishing that Sunday lasted forever and there were no week days.

"Tomorrow you'll be filing cards," sighed Pansy, "and I'll be pounding my typewriter. It's a cruel world, Dolores. Nothing but cards, cards, cards [illegible], and nothing but carbon paper and ivory keys for me."

"If we weren't a couple of scare-cats we [illegible] our jobs and [illegible] hike," replied Dolores. "I've got $50 saved up and we could work in some of the towns every time we needed money. Just imagine being a waitress at some country inn or perhaps being a governess to some youngster for a month or so. Sometimes they need help on the farms. There are plenty of things we could do."

"I have $40 and I might borrow something from Jack," mused Pansy. "Jack kids me an awful lot, but back of it all he's a pretty good brother when it comes to giving financial aid or advice."

They walked on in silence again. The call of the open seemed more alluring as they noted the fragrance of the air, the warmth of the sun and their increasing cheery spirit.

"Walk brisker, and take a long breath," commanded Dolores. "Pansy, your cheeks are a perfect sunset. You don't need to use your vanity bag now."

Pansy pulled out her mirror.

"Almost heaven!" she giggled. "Don't I wish I could keep them this way, Dolores. I'll resign on Monday. We can always get as good positions as we have now. We can't lose and we might learn a lot. We might—"

"Why, we might meet our fates!" exclaimed Dolores, laughing and batting her eyes.

"I don't want to meet mine," announced Pansy. "I'm a bachelor girl, but I'd just as soon be bridesmaid for you this June!"

"I can just see how much of a bachleor girl you'd be if you met a handsome young farmer with a smart team of horses!"

"Pooh, farmers don't drive teams of horses any more," corrected Pansy. "They spin about in Rolls-Royces and live like millionaires."

"I see you've thought about them," laughed Dolores. "Well, sir, I've about made up my mind. I've got a pair of knickers and an old sport coat that I've been longing to wear. I've a notion to get them out Monday, put my $50 in the pocket of the knickers, call the boss up and tell him to get a new file clerk."

"If you do I'll follow suit," declared Pansy, and that is the reason why a certain boss in a downtown section bellowed at everybody all one Monday and why Pansy's mother and three brothers shook their heads and said they really didn't know what crazy things the modern girls would do next.

GOVERNMENT DELAY BURST THE BUBBLE

Lincoln Men Stood to Make a Million on Airplane Deal.

INSTEAD THEY WENT BROKE

Inside Details of a Disastrous Transaction Are Revealed.

HORNED IN ON A BIG DEAL

Secured Airplanes at a Small Part of Their Value, Sold Them But Were Unable to Make Delivery.

When L. A. Winship and A. G. Hebb, two Lincoln men who were the chief promoters of the Hebb Motors work, read in the newspapers early in 1919 that the federal government was about to dispose of what remained of the airplanes for which it nad expended for war purposes, they were seized with an idea that they thought was worth a million dollars to them. Instead it was one of the big factors in breaking both o fthem financially and pulling down with them a large number of other Nebraskans.

The idea really was worth a million dollars, but government delay and inefficiency, in the opinion of Lincoln men who were not interested but who later tried to salvage something from the remains of the Nebraska Aircraft corporation, formed to turn the million dollar dream into reality, was directly responsible for the bursting of the bubble.

The story is soon to be told in Washington, where a senate committee is threatening to use its details to challenge the good faith of Attorney General Daugherty as a government prosecutor. The facts about it were gathered, as has already been told, by J. M. Priest, a Lincoln lawyer, and the evidence he spent months gathering sent to Washington, where it was buried and no prosecutions ever instituted.

The story has many angles, but it will serve to bring home to Lincoln people something of the wastage of money they taxed themselves to pay to carry on the war that occurred in the months following its close, a hectic period where the trail of graft and extravagance was broad and deep.

Immediately following the incubation of the idea, Mr. Winship and Mr. Hebb went to Washington. There they found that the Curtice and Wright airplane companies were arranging to divide between themselves and a few smaller manufacturers the planes and engines that remained in the hands of the war department. To these representatives they said that they represented a corporation organized in Nebraska for the especial purpose of buying as many planes as they could get at as low a price as they could be secured.

At that time it was believed that the development of aircraft during the war would be followed by a very general use of the planes. The war had turned loose a large number of trained pilots for whom a lucrative field of money-making lay in the line of exhibitions and passenger-carrying for hire. This was the honey that attracted the bees from the airplane companies. The big fellows did not want competition, and as the result of negotiations it was agreed that the Nebraska men should bid a certain price for a certain number of planes, 284 in number, and that there would be no bids filed in opposition.

The deal was carried out, altho the Nebraskans who had made good on what was then largely a bluff were chagrined later to find that they were offering to pay more for what they got than the other companies paid. Hebb and Winship returned to Lincoln for the purpose of financing their proposition.

How They Got the Money.

They organized the Nebraska Aircraft corporation. No money went into the company, the stockholders simply giving their notes. L. B. Howey and L. J. Dunn, who were then—four and more years ago—directing the affairs of the City National bank, discounting these notes and selling them to the Riggs National of Washington, which supplied the money with which the financing of the contract was begun.

Capt. Horace B. Wild, late of the army, was the agent sent to Washington to secure the contract and the planes. He worked with Gaston B. Means, who was the star witness Friday in the Daugherty investigation at Washington. Wild and Means between them spent about $50,000 of the company's money in entertaining, lobbying and as Wild now asserts in payments to army officers who were handling the sale of the planes.

Under the contract as it was finally signed the Nebraska Aircraft company agreed to pay the government $47,500 a month, and for this payment the government agreed to ship at least thirty planes a month. The company employed salesmen who covered the western part of the country as far as the Pacific coast who turned in orders for planes at prices ranging from $2,500 to $8,000.

THE WEATHER.

For Lincoln and vicinity: Partly cloudy tonight and Sunday; probably with some snow, little change in temperature. The minimum temperature tonight will be between 25 degrees and 30 degrees.

For Nebraska, Unsettled tonight and Sunday; probably snow; little change in temperature.

For these the company was paying the government an average of $2,000. A little calculation will show where the idea of a million dollars' profit came in.

On each of these sales, which were largely to ex-army pilots who were buying planes for exhibition purposes, a payment down of from $200 to $1,000 were required.

The Aircraft officials, pleased with their success so far, soon began to get worried. No planes came. Letters and telegrams brought replies that were not satisfactory. In spite of all they could do they did not get a single plane for four or five months

PAROLED GIRL BACK TO PEN

ARRESTED WITH SIX OTHERS IN RAID FRIDAY NIGHT.

Evelyn Spady, twenty-four, colored, who gave the name of Evelyn Tyler when arrested at 2238 T, about 4 a. m. Saturday in company with Gladys Martin, sixteen, Mrs. Florence Robinson, thirty-nine, R. W. Hayes, thirty, trainporter; George Collins, twenty-one, truckdriver, and Douglas Porter, thirty-four who gave the name of Frederic Douglas when arrested, was taken back to the state penitentiary Saturday morning and the charge of disorderly conduct held against her, continued thirty days by Judge Chappell. The group said they had been attending a social at the home of Mrs. Robinson and were staying all night with her. The arrest was made following a complaint that the neighborhood was being disturbed.

The seven were arraigned in police court Saturday morning and Gladys Martin, who said she had just arrived from Anthony, Kas., to visit with Mrs. Robinson, was dismissed on condition that she return to her home in Kansas. Charges of disorderly conduct against R. W. Hayes, Archie Vernon and George Collins were continued to March 25. Douglas Porter who faces a charge of illegal possession of liquor, is to come before the judge March 17 and the outcome of his trial will influence the sentences of the others. Mrs. Robinson was charged with operating a house of prostitution and her case continued to March 25.

The city sought to show evidence that some of the men and women had been sleeping together but the accused denied any such insinuations and each accounted for his actions at the time of the arrest. Vernon, who leaped thru a window partly clad as the police entered, explained that he had nothing to be afraid of and merely did not want to be involved in a scandal as he is a railroad man of eleven years standing and so far has a clean record. The ladies who were in bed expressed the belief that it was natural for one to go to bed at some time during the night. They said no men were in their rooms. All denied any knowledge of the small amount of hooch found in a pint bottle. None o fthose arreseted was drunk.

CAPITOL SEWER DELAYED

Prospects, however, Are That It Will Be in Long Before Any Roof Draining.

The capitol sewer, much discussed in a financial way by Commissioner Cowgill and others, will not be completed as early as was at first anticipated. In all likelihood, however, it will be ripe and ready for carrying storm waters long before the capitol roof begins to drip moisture.

Bids on the project were opened and closed. The closing or rejection was not due to Mr. Cowgill's fuss over where the money came from. Bids were turned down because of discovery of a new type of construction introduced after specifications were issued. Those plans called for segment block and that type only. City Engineer Erickson on Monday will submit specifications on three types as follows: segment block, concrete pipe and concrete box. Contractors may bid on any or all of them. Bids probably will be received a week from next Saturday.

IN THE LINCOLN CHURCHES

Lincoln Council of Churches.

Dr. Roy B. Guild, executive secretary for the department of councils of churches, will be the guest of the local council on Tuesday. At 6:15 p. m. there will be a fellowship supper at the First Christian church. Altho notices of this meeting have been sent only to the ministers and delegated representatives of the churches, anyone who is interested in the cooperative work of the Christian forces of the city, will be most welcome. Reservations should be made not later than Monday morning, thru the secretary of the council at the Y. M. C. A. building.

The community betterment committee appreciates the service which the W. U. T. U. is rendering in making arrangements for the coming of Mrs. Mary Harris Armour Monday night and requests the ministers to urge the great body of church members to hear Mrs. Armour for the help they will be sure to get in handling local law enforcement problems. The luncheon at the Grand hotel at 1:30 p. m. Monday is open to all women who wish to come and who make reservations in time. Mrs. H. R. McDowell, 1528 R street, is chairman of the committee.

Attention is called to the statement made this week that St. Paul church issues a cordial invitation to all church goers to attend the Gipsy Simon Smith meetings at any time during the next two weeks, that they are free from their own church engagements. The same invitation is extended by the First Christian church to the noon theater meetings being arranged by that church.

The vacation church school movement is expanding. Two new centers were added to the original list last week.

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary: Ask Brute if he won't be so good as to creep out of his hole this once more and give me a come-back on this.

Why, oh men, can I not be myself, giving all, loving and worshiping as I wish and my disposition sees fit? Why must I put on a reserve, a haughtiness and an air of total deceit? Why do you not care for my true nature? This must be your reason: you do not like to feel possession, you rather enjoy to be always working for a goal, which, even tho reached would not bring satisfaction.

Some girls true disposition consists of those characteristics, and many times you will be baffled by a woman of that type, thinking she is only playing the part you request of her.

To please men, I must change my disposition and so I have. It is now distant, reserved, quiet and sneering, and so it shall remain until death. The change has not been to please men, but to hate them.

The connection between deceitful qualities and affection, I cannot comprehend, tho I can easily understand the connection between deceit and hate.

How foolish or girls to even think there will be a man who can appreciate devoted affection, woman's desire to please and her thoughts of no limit in serving. Why must we treat the man we might learn to love with indifference and form? Is it not easier to hate.

I should think such a disposition as you ask for would get commonplace, for as women seeking marriage learn your requirements, they surely cater to them.

No true wife, no true love, no true homes, no true happiness. Bah, of course there isn't, when you expect we who would give that to be other than ourselves.

"Tho I speak with the tongues of men and angles and have not love it availeth me nothing." Those were beautiful words of Paul's but I dare say, had he been living in this generation, those lines would have read, "Tho I speak with the tongues of men and angles and have not hatred here upon earth, it availeth me nothing." Just so do I believe.—Helen.

A. Something has hurt you dreadfully, I'm afraid. Hatred or bitter feeling does not help anyone. It does not pay to be other than yourself—were you naturally bitter and cynical you would not be as hurt as your letter shows you to be.

Let time and work soothe and heal you, dear girl.

There are men who appreciate devotion. Sometimes they seem hard to find, but they exist. You have just misplaced your affection in this instance.

Dear Mary: 1. When a young man calls on you that is to spend the evening or has taken you to some entertainment and stays a little while after you arrive home, is it proper to serve something and should you always?

2. If you go with a young man "steady" must you then always thank him for your good time or just occasionally?

Yes, Mary, I too stick up for you and Brute for believing there is a God.

Now I am a girl of fifteen years. I am motherless and I can proudly say I love my work, my church, my friends and all in a good true way.

And Mary oh I'm so glad no one has ever tried to lead me out of the good and I know that now no one could. No matter what would happen in my life I shall not forget my God.

No I am not ashamed of my faith. I would pray before the worst enemies of church.

Oh, I just love it (church and prayer).

Why Jess I have prayed for so many things so many times and why I have never been left out.

Altho things did not come my way right then they did soon.

I am now keeping house for my father our family is not large but I am certainly kept busy with the work as we live on the farm.

Now Mary some of these girls that have said they could not do most housework, why if they would only interest themselves in it, I just know they would like it too.

I was reared by a family outside of my relatives they did make me work hard (not too hard) and I sure appreciate it and will always thank the lady because I have kept house almost 3 years for my father and all this time and as you could and would know and see I have baked bread, did our own washing and ironing I can cook and bake anything. I just love too.

Everybody wonders and have ask me so many a time how I could do my work so well.

Also many girls ask me how I can get up so early in the mornings. Well I am used to my getting up time just as they are.

I have dark days as well as anyone but Mary I see my bright days too.

I have just lots of friends both boys and girls and try to help anybody that is in need. If some of these folks would only "try" they could be happy, cause I am - Goody Good

A. Your daddy should be proud of you. I'm sure he is. We're glad to hear from you, Little Housekeeper.

It is nice to serve something when you have a boy friend at your home. Not necessary.

You should always express your appreciation for the good time, and say how much you enjoyed it, but it is not necessary to thank him each time.

Dear Mary Gordon: I suppose I'm a bit "boy-crazy," but I'd like ot be getting a little masculine attention.

I miss said attention very much because my pal has a "steady," and a bunch of boys are crazy about her.

Please don't say "study your pal." etc., because she is so different than I.

How can a girl interest a boy? What sort of a girl will fellows be liking?

Please answer this because till you do I'll be just—Waiting.

A. Not necessarily "boy crazy" in my eyes. Every girl likes boys, whether or not she admits it. There is no sure recipe for popularity. But the girl who is always happy, always friendly, interested in others, unselfish, and willing to listen to others' joys and sorrows never lacks friends. Try it.

To correspondents: If your letters seem to be ignored, your question has been recently answered in the column. You will understand that we cannot print the same answers to the same questions, week after week.

Broken-Hearted Dolly: It's all right to go with someone else. If the young man is "mad," give him time and room to recover.

Effect of Nationality.

"Isn't that clock a little fast?"

"Shouldn't be surprised; it's a French clock."—Boston Transcript.

FALL'S DEALS DWELT UPON

COMMITTEE DETERMINED TO KNOW MORE ABOUT THEM.

Will Try to Learn If Sinclair Gave Over $25,000 and What Doheny $100,000 Was Used For.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Sticking doggedly to its task of clearing up the whole story of Albert B. Fall's Fall's financial dealings with oil magnates, the senate oil investigating committee will make another effort next week to get the facts on these matters:

1—Whether Harry F. Sinclair gave Fall more than $25,000, which J. W. Zevely, Sinclair's man, has testified Fall was given.

2—Whether the $100,000 E. L. Doheny testified he gave Fall really went for purchase of Fall's New Mexico ranch, or was part of a fund for a much more important purpose.

3—If Doheny's $100,000 was part of a fund, who else contributed to it, and how much and just what this fund was used for?

Members of the committee feel their work will not be complete until they have cleared up many vague spots and at least made another effort to run down many contradictions in the record.

Senator Walsh, the chief investigator, is taking advantage of a bronchial cold to go over the evidence again at his home, and new witnesses may be summoned before the committee resumes here Tuesday.

ELEMENTARY ENGLISH COMPOSITION—Sentence Structure: Coherence in the Sentence.

NOT only should the sentence have unity—that is, not only must it express only one thought; the sentence must have coherence. Coherence demands that the various related elements of a sentence should be so placed that there can be no doubt as to their relationship. Note, then, that coherence is a matter of placing the elements of a sentence. The lack of coherence in a sentence results from a kind of carelessness different from that which causes a lack of unity in a sentence. There is no unity in a sentence because there is no unity in the thought for which the sentence is supposedly the expression—such sentences are the result of sheer muddleheadedness. But when a sentence lacks coherence, the cause may lie elsewhere. The writer may have the relationships of his sentence-elements clearly placed in his thinking, but somehow or other the elements become separated when they are written down. The sentence-elements become lost one from the other somewhere between the brain and the pen point. The pronoun loses its relationship with its antecedent. The participle loses all connection with its subject. Adjectives and adverbs—especially in the form of phrases and clauses—become separated from the words they should modify. The result in each case is a loss of coherence.

I. Difficulties of the Pronoun.

The pronoun is a part of speech that is easily dislocated. Since a pronoun stands for a noun, the relationship between the pronoun and its noun must be evident.

Rule VIII. The relationship between a pronoun and its antecedent must be unmistakable.

Note the lack of coherence in the following sentences:

1. John had bought his dog when he was four years old.

(Was John or the dog four years old? If the pronoun refers to John, the sentence should read,

When John was four years old, he had bought his dog.)

2. Murder will out. This has often been proved.

(What is the antecedent of this? A demonstrative pronoun should have a definite antecedent. If there is no antecedent, the pronoun this should be changed to the adjective this modifying an appropriate noun. For instance, the sentence just given would then read, Murder will out. This truth has often been proved.)

3. Here is where they skate during the winter.

(What is the antecedent of they? If it has none, the sentence should be recast—

There is skating here during the winter.)

4. They gave the fish to the cat which they could not eat.

(Here the relative pronoun has been attached to the wrong antecedent, which has been interposed between the pronoun and its real antecedent. To remedy such a construction bring the real antecedent and its pronoun together thus:

They gave the fish which they could not eat to the cat.

II. Difficulties of the Participle.

The participle is another source of difficulty, because it frequently becomes separated from its subject. Or the participle may have two possible subjects, and we are left to guess which one is the real subject.

Rule IX. The relationship between a participle and its subject must be unmistakable.

Note the following examples:

1. Running around the corner I saw the thief.

(This sentence may mean,

I saw the thief running around the corner, or

As I was running around the corner, I saw the thief.

Of course, no one wishes to write a sentence that may have two meanings. We usually wish our sentences to carry most explicit meanings.)

2. Looking out of my bedroom window I saw our only cow.

(This sentence should read,

As I was looking out of my bedroom window I saw our only cow.)

3. She entered the house freshly painted.

(The sentence should read,

She entered the house, which had been freshly painted.)

III. Difficulties of the Phrase and Clause.

Adjectival and adverbial phrases and clauses frequently become separated from the words they should modify—often with ludicrous results.

Rule X. A modifying phrase or clause should be placed as near as possible to the word it modifies.

Note the following examples:

1. Lost—a cane by an old gentleman with an ivory head.

(The phrase with an ivory head modifies the word cane and, of course, should be placed immediately following the word cane.)

2. Leave the letter as you go down town with the hall boy.

(The phrase with the hall boy modifies leave, of course.)

3. He was walking down the street with a pleased expression.

(Place the troublesome expression with a pleased expression first in the sentence, so that the phrase will clearly modify walking.)

IV. Exercise—Coherence in the Sentence.

Improve the following sentences. The corrected sentences, with the principle governing each correction, will be given in the next lesson.

1. Before John reached his friend he disappeared.
2. Coming up the street I saw the house.
3. I entered the room decorated with palms.
4. They hauled the car to the garage which had been abandoned in the ditch.
5. They study English here.
6. I jumped out of bed as the sun rose and took a swim.
7. Smith is a good linguist. This he acquired at college.
8. Jumping from one tree to the other we could see the squirrel.
9. I interviewed Smith's secretary who was absent.
10. I gave him a friendly slap as he left the room on his back.

CORRECTED SENTENCES—LESSON IV.—UNITY OF THE SENTENCE

The following sentences show the corrected forms of the Exercise in Lesson IV. The reason for each correction is also given.

1. Correct these sentences. If you understand the rule involved, you will have no difficulty.

(This sentence was jammed and therefore ambiguous. As I have corrected it, it is clear.)

2. When they drew me to shore, I was a sight. I was wringing wet from head to foot.

(The insertion of I was in the second word-group makes the word-group a sentence.)

3. Washington was made Commander in Chief of the army in 1775. He died in 1799.

(There is no connection between the two original elements of the sentence. Now each sentence is a unit.)

4. Why not write us a letter? A letter is always welcome.

(The original sentence really contained two sentences. When each element is written as a complete sentence, then each sentence is a unit.)

5. I now have an office in the Navy Building, where my many clients will be welcome.

(The subordinate clause is now written as a clause and not as a sentence. The clause could also be changed into a good sentence by changing where to here.)

6. The office is now more convenient, it being near the station.

(The phrase is now written as a phrase and not as a sentence.)

7. The room was ideal. It contained pictures, an easy chair, and a victrola.

(The insertion of a subject and a predicate in the word-group makes the word-group a sentence.)

8. Please excuse Jimmie's tardiness. By doing so you will oblige his mother.

(Separate the two elements so slightly related.)

9. He was punished, since he was undoubtedly guilty.

(The subordinate clause is now written as a subordinate clause, and not as a complete sentence.)

10. He was a good fellow. He was always true to his friends. He was fair and square.

(The jammed sentence is now separated into units.)

Note: The majority of these sentences could also be recast and repunctuated with considerable improvement. The sentences as given above merely correct the faults of the Exercise of Lesson IV.)

To-morrow I shall discuss the principle of emphasis as applied to the sentence.

ASKED TO INVESTIGATE

Woman Secretary to Senator Kirby Said Means Hired Her to Probe Caraway.

DALLAS, Tex., March 15.—Laura Jacobsen, former secretary to United States Senator William F. Kirby of Arkansas, told here today how she had been hired by Gaston B. Means and asked to investigate Senator Caraway of Arkansas. Miss Jacobsen sadi Means asked her to take a special trip to Arkansas to get information on Senator Caraway.

"I did not go to Arkansas," the woman said, "altho I gave Means the names of other residents of the state who could supply the information he wanted."

Means said in testifying before the senate committee investigating Attorney General Daugherty yesterday that he had investigated Senator Caraway when the latter attacked the attorney general.

"When I quit Means' employ, I had some salary coming which I tried to collect," Miss Jacobsen continued. "William J. Burns wrote that Means was never authorized to investigate Senator Caraway."

MRS. THAW TO AID SON

AGED WOMAN ADMITS WANTS SANITY ESTABLISHED.

Declares Anyone Associated With Him in Past Few Years Could Not Doubt What Trial Would Result In.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 15.—Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, eighty-two-year-old mother of Harry K. Thaw, slayer of Stanford White and former husband of Evelyn Nesbit today admitted that she would aid her son to obtain his freedom from the Pennsylvania hospital for the insane at Philadelphia.

"Yes, Harry has asked for a trial by jury to determine his sanity and later when arrangements are made we will make a statement," Mrs. Thaw said.

"No one who has been associated with him the last few years has any doubt as to what the result of such a test should be."

PHILADELPHIA, March 15.—On April 14, Harry K. Thaw, killer of Stanford White, will go on trial again in an attempt to establish sanity and secure his legal release from the Pennsylvania hospital for the insane here.

He has been granted a jury trial in response to a petition which he himself signed and which states he "has been restored to a sound state of mind and is capable of managing his own affairs."

Thaw is supported in this move by his mother, Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, who, until recently, has opposed any attempt on the part of her son to obtain his release from the asylum.

Judge James G. Gordon, attorney for Mrs. Thaw, declares this latest move on the part of Thaw is a complete surprise to him, and that as late as January he and Mrs. Thaw blocked an attempt on the part of Thaw to gain his freedom.

If Thaw gains his freedom here he may have to face a criminal charge in New York of whipping and kidnaping Frederick Gump, jr., a seventeen-year-old Kansas City boy, in New York in 1917. Mrs. Thaw, however, recently made a financial settlement of the case and Gump is expected not to prosecute it further.

SMALLPOX REPORT SHOWS FEW CASES

Summing Up of Disease Conditions in Lincoln and Other Parts of the Country Up to March 15.

"People in Lincoln are to be congratulated so far as the smallpox situation is concerned," says Health Superintendent Chapman. "Up to January 19 this year, Lincoln had not harbored a case of smallpox since the summer of 1922, when the last case was removed by death in a family who did not believe in vaccination. The first case to follow the death in 1922 is a man who travels thru Colorado. He nor his family did not believe in vaccination. He came home sick January 19 this year, eruption appeared on January 23, and our first knowledge of the case was February 1. Lucky for everyone concerned he had not left his home. The premises were quarantined February 1 and on the third, just fourteen days after he, the husband, became ill, his wife and four children, ages respectively two months, three, five and six years, came down with the disease. None of these had ever been vaccinated. One young lady rooming with this family showed a vaccination scar of two years' standing. She escaped having the disease. We were greatly elated to know that this household comprised all the exposures.

"February 20 a sister living elsewhere became ill and developed an eruption four days later which proved to be smallpox, showing she contracted the disease six days after her sister's home had been quarantined. This sister, like the others, did not believe in vaccination. Try our best, we were unable, from her story, to connect her case with that of her sister in whose home the only smallpox in Lincoln existed. Regardless, we are satisfied when and where this last case contracted the disease. She was sick from Wednesday to Sunday; Monday she was broken out, resumed her duties visiting a number of families, continuing to do so Tuesday and Wednesday until we got information of her condition. We followed up her exposure and vaccinated all. No cases have developed since, so we feel that we covered the ground pretty thoroly and are inclined to think we aborted a probable outbreak at two different times, either of which might have developed into a smallpox epidemic. We may not be so fortunate in future instances in limiting the spread of the disease. Our advice is to get vaccinated and prevent the reoccurrence of smallpox in Lincoln."

LAFOLLETTE HAS SUPPORT

Third Party Sentiment in Minnesota Is Unanimous for the Wisconsin Senator.

ST. CLOUD, Minn., March 15.—Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin has the unanimous support of third party sentiment in Minnesota.

LaFollette will be a candidate for president with the third party endorsement. He has already drawn up a tentative platform on which he is willing to be a third party candidate according to Wm. Mahoney, St. Paul labor and political leader.

Mahoney made this revelation before the Minnesota farmer-labor convention of 400 delegates here. Mahoney wrote the voluminous resolution adopted unanimously endorsing the third party convention to be held in St. Paul June 17.

John F. Sinclair, Minneapolis investment banker, traveler, writer, and very close to LaFollette, made the statement privately, however, that Senator LaFollette did not want a third party. He was not a delegate to the convention and did not speak.

THE TRUE STORY OF WOODROW WILSON

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.

CHAPTER XIX.

How Tumulty Came to Be Selected as Private Secretary—His Influence on the Administration.

Woodrow Wilson was aided in no small extent in what he accomplished in his first administration by the astuteness of his private secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, and the constant counsel of Colonel House and Albert Sidney Burleson, postmaster general, who had for many years been a member of the house of representatives.

Naturally the judgments of these advisers became the source of much debate among President Wilson's friends as would be natural in political matters. For every time that one man is selected the friends of the disappointed candidates are loud in their expressions of criticism. It has always been the viewpoint of politicians themselves that more enemies than friends are made by appointments to office.

Lack of contact with Washington itself—Mr. Wilson had studied congress only in a theoretical sense—made the first few years a perilous proposition for President Wilson. He was not a mixer. He was never known to slap anyone on the back in jovial fashion. He was sociable enough upon occasions, good-humored and a fascinating conversationalist, but he did not know how to inspire the practical politicians with that species of support which means working tooth and nail and with unflinching loyalty.

Impressions may differ, jealousies are always present in the immediate circle of a president's daily life, but the success of Woodrow Wilson's first administration may be attributed in no small measure to the warmth, enthusiasm and political sagacity of his private secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty.

No one in recent years had been the private secretary of the Tumulty type. He was unique. He was neither the Machiavelli that so many of his enemies thought him to be nor did he exert the influence over Mr. Wilson which so many inaccurate accounts of their friendship would seem to indicate.

President Wilson listened to Tumulty, read his memoranda and took his advice on so many important matters that in the inner circle those who were dismayed by Tumulty's growing influence sought to check it—and eventually did.

Mr. Wilson, as governor-elect of New Jersey, did not select Tumulty to be his private secretary because of a desire to have at his elbow a man of his own temperament but because he knew he needed someone with the qualities he himself lacked. Tumulty knew New Jersey politics, he was a progressive in the state legislature and a conscientious worker. He was moreover frank. He was one of the few men who could stand before Woodrow Wilson and tell him in plain language wherein he was making a mistake. Most of the other advisers Mr. Wilson had were afraid of him—rather than incur his disfavor they would couch their dissent in euphemistic phrases.

Certain influences were working in 1912 to bring about the selection of someone other than Tumulty to be private secretary to the president. It was not due to any lack of confidence in Tumulty but to a belief that someone who had experience in larger affairs might be more of a help to Mr. Wilson. There was a time when the name of Newton D. Baker was given serious consideration for the post of private secretary. He was at that time mayor of Cleveland and had made a very favorable impression during the 1912 campaign.

Mr. Wilson's mind was made up more or less along this line—he wanted Tumulty to continue but he was ready to be convinced if anyone could show him why some other type should be selected.

Curiously enough the opposition to Tumulty was one of the things which crystallized Mr. Wilson's determination to appoint him. Mr. Wilson retained the office of governor of New Jersey while he was president-elect and made his home in Princeton, commuting every morning the twelve miles between his home and his office. The author rode with him many mornings and discussed various questions relating to the news of the day. On one occasion when we had been riding along in silence for several minutes Mr. Wilson suddenly said: "You would be surprised to know the number of letters I have been receiving telling me I must not appoint a Catholic to be my private secretary." His jaw set, his eyes flashed. "I would like to ram that appointment down their throats," he added.

Newspapers began to predict that Tumulty would be selected but he never had the slightest information to that effect until about two weeks before the inauguration when Governor Wilson called him into his office one day and offered him the secretaryship.

There was in those days a good deal of skepticism as to how Mr. Wilson would fare with the political strategists in congress. One day he read an editorial in a New York newspaper expressing the fear that because he had been a school teacher he would not be able to cope with the wise politicians at Washington.

"Of course," said Mr. Wilson, "I cannot answer this and say 'don't worry. I can take care of myself.' Nobody would believe it for I will have to prove my knowledge of politics and politicians as time passes but whenever I see anything of this kind in print I can't help but think that, compared with some of the college politicians, the party politicians are amateurs. The party politician plays his hand openly. You always know what he is going to do. He always follows the same rules and is always up to the same purpose. A college politician should not be mentioned in the same breath. He is very shrewd—and you never know what he is going to do. He has the gift of speech and can make black look like white—and I have been dealing with him for the past thirty years.

"When I was a candidate for governor of New Jersey the opposition called me a schoolmaster in derision. I told them the definition of the word was a man trained to find out things and tell them to others as effectively as possible. I said that that was what I was doing about New Jersey affairs, and that I proposed to continue finding out things and telling people about them as long as I lived."

It was Mr. Wilson's chief weapon—the power of public opinion. No one was more adept in its use, however, than Secretary Tumulty. He was able to set the stage for an address by the president or for the announcement of some other important action, hinting a few days in advance that a sensation was forthcoming or revealing bit by bit, and with an air of mystery, things which appeared to the eager newspaper men to be great secrets, data which Mr. Tumulty with all the arts known to the practiced publicity expert, divulged with an idea to headlines and conspicuous display.

Woodrow Wilson little knew how the artful Tumulty did handle the delicate question of relations with the press, but the effectiveness of the Tumulty policy was as a rule conceded. Time and again Secretary Tumulty revealed the president's views and articulated the administration viewpoint with more skill than the president showed in his conferences with the newspaper men. Nobody in the entire administration kept in as close touch in the eight years with the editorial opinion of the American press than did Secretary Tumulty. He watched the upward and downward curve of administration popularity with all the concentration that a banker studies the rise and fall of the investment markets. Secretary Tumulty possessed an intuition which is invaluable in the realm of politics. And with it he brought to Mr. Wilson a keen judgment of men and political influence. Mr. Wilson never knew of the many bits of tactful conversation conducted in his outer offices which sent senators and representatives back to the capitol in a different frame of mind than they came to the white house. Hostilities were overcome, grievances were smoothed out and contacts strengthened all because of the liaison maintained by Secretary Tumulty. Naturally he had his opponents. No politician ever took a step in one direction without antagonizing some one on the opposite side. President Wilson's confidence in Tumulty in the earlier years was unbounded. He gave him a free hand. Secretary Tumulty on the other hand stimulated by his successes in handling the president and callers generally took the responsibility for many steps which possibly the president might have not taken had he been consulted, but just as often was Secretary Tumulty right in these plunges as was his chief wrong.

Time and again Secretary Tumulty intervened and prevented political blunders. And the breaks of the game, so to speak, were with him often so that the president forgave occasional slips and mistakes being mindful of the larger accomplishments of his private secretary.

Altogether it was a remarkable association—an unusual blend of two types wholly different but working effectively in combination. The break between these two men really relates to the second administration of Mr. Wilson and will be reserved for a future chapter.

NEBRASKA CITY, March 15.—While tearing down part of the fresco work on the old Bishof building in this city, workmen found a board with the following information on it in pencil: "Built by W. D. Hollabaugh July 8, 1880." The writing was legible in spite of being forty-four years old. W. D. Hollabaugh is till a resident of this city. The board will be kept by Earl Brust, a contractor, as a memento.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.—Advertisement.

AIR SERVICE MEN CALLED

WHEELER TO SEEK CORROBORATION OF TESTIMONY.

Daugherty Denies Stories of Mrs. Smith and Means—Declares It Is Case of Blackmail.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Former air service officials have been summoned to testify before the senate committee investigating the department of justice.

Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, chief prosecutor, announced he would not call either Roxie Stinson Smith or Gaston B. Means today, but would seek corroboration of sensational testimony given by the latter on Friday regarding the Standard Aircraft case.

Meantime Attorney General Daugherty, target of the inquiry, was preparing to issue further statements denying the testimony of Means and Roxie Stinson Smith.

In a statement given out at his office last night, Daugherty struck back savagely at the latter, charging her, in effect, with trying to blackmail him or his friends.

"She is a disappointed woman who blames me because her divorced husband did not make her the sole legatee under his will; an angry woman because the courts have decided against her in litigation over the estate of her divorced husband; a malicious woman because the friends of the attorney general have brushed aside and disregarded all her tentative efforts to capitalize her silence," said Daugherty.

He denied all her charges in detail.

Daugherty also made public a list of twenty-two convictions he said the department of justice had obtained for illegal showing of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight pictures, which figured in the testimony of both Mrs. Smith and Means.

Air officers were to take the stand today at the Daugherty hearing and tell what they knew of the alleged failure of the attorney general to prosecute the Standard Aircraft corporation against which the government had claims for over-payment amounting to $6,000,000.

Wheeler hoped to throw further light upon the ultimate receiver of $100,000 which Means said he received from a Japanese in the Bellevue hotel here and turned over to Jesse Smith.

The story of this money leading as it did to disclosure that the Standard Aircraft concerns were financed and controlled by the Mitsui company, a Japanese corporation, was but one of a series of amazing allegations made by Means.

Means, who charged he was constantly under surveillance by department of justice agents and that his telephone wires were tapped, is to be recalled early next week.

Mrs. Smith, who testified Wednesday and Thursday as to Jesse Smith's receipt of money and mysterious gifts of oil and motor stocks, in which he alleged she believed Attorney General Daugherty shared, had recovered from the indisposition that prevented her testifying yesterday and will also be heard again next week.

CHURCHMEN REACH PARIS

Archbishops Hayes and Mundelein to Proceed to Rome, to Reecive Red Hats.

PARIS, March 15.—Archbishops Hayes of New York and Mundelein of Chicago arived here today and called on Monsignor Gerretti, the papal nuncio, prior to departing tomorrow for Rome where they will receive the red hats of cardinals from Pope Pius.

The churchmen arrived in Paris at daybreak, considerably fatigued from the rough crossing of the Atlantic. The Berengaria, they said, was buffeted by heavy seas practically all the way from New York to Cherbourg.

Before visiting the nuncio, the archbishops received several prominent members of the American colony.

BOBBY HAS A CHAT WITH BOSSY COW'S COUSIN.

"GRACIOUS!" Bobby exclaimed, as a great big animal walked out from behind the pile of brush back of the wire fence. "What kind of animal are you, anyway?"

"What!" laughed the strange creature. "Big as you are, can't you read the sign above the fence? B-u-f-f-a-l-o, Buffalo. I thought every youngster in the country knew when he saw me that I am a buffalo. Some folks who want to be nice call me Mr. Bison, but I like plain old 'buffalo' best for a name."

"Well, you see, I've never seen anything like you before, so how should I know what you are?" laughed Bobby. "I'm nearly certain that I've never seen you or any of your relatives before in all my life."

"Oh, yes you have," replied Mr. Buffalo, with a shake of his head. "You have a cousin of mine on your father's farm called Bossy Cow."

He laughed when he saw the queer expression on Bobby's face. "All cattle and sheep are cousins of mine," he added. "We're called the Bovidae family."

"You don't look anything like Bossy," mused Bobby, "except that you have horns. Do you shed them every year as some animals do?"

"Certainly not. I think that's all foolish," replied Mr. Buffalo. "It's too much trouble to suit me. No, when once I grow my horns there they stay as long as I'm alive. I never change them. I always wear them at the sides of my forehead, curved up and inward. They are always sharp and perfectly smooth. I never did admire the branched style that some of my friends persist in wearing. I'll admit I'm not good looking. I realize that the front part of my body is too heavy-looking for the the back part."

"Why do you wear that great beard hanging from your neck?" asked Bobby.

"So it won't dribble in my soup when I eat," laughed Mr. Buffalo.

"Well," Bobby sighed, "I should think it would take more than soup to satisfy a big fellow like you. Really, do you eat——"

"Gracious," interrupted Mr. Buffalo. "Of course I don't eat soup. I eat grass and the more I can get the happier I am. But laying all joking aside, I'm dreadfully warm. Excuse me—I'm going to cool off."

Mr. Buffalo lay down in a great big mud-puddle and rolled over and over until he was completely covered with mud. "That's the only thing I know of to do when I'm hot and the flies bother me," he said. "The water cools me off and the flies won't settle on me when I'm covered with mud."

Shaking his big head Mr. Buffalo trotted off, leaving Bobby alone.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

Madge Told Alfred Dicky Would Corroborate Her Word.

I DID not need to look at Alfred Durkee to know that I had drawn blood when, in answer to his protest against my comment upon Bess Dean, I had told him that I was perfectly sure she was not in love with him. His sudden flat silence told me that I had pricked through the skin of his vanity, and I did not need the embarrassed but insincere denial which followed to reinforce my recognition.

"Of course she isn't," he said roughly. "I know that, but the rest of you act that way. You're getting a wrong slant on this," he went on, and this time there was a ring of sincerity in his voice. "I did play around with Bess a bit—and so did the Dicky-bird—I wouldn't say that, only he told me you knew it"—this inserted half defiantly, half apologetically.

"I know all about it," I interpolated, to keep the amusement from my voice—Alfred was boyishly transparent in his mental flounderings.

"Then you know, too, that there wasn't any harm in it," he retorted quickly. "Leila wouldn't have objected if I'd taken you, for instance, around as much as I did Bess."

"Wouldn't she?" I asked myself ironically, with a mental grin at the blindness of Alfred's type of masculinity, but aloud I only murmured demurely:

Not Sauce for the Goose.

"Of course not, any more than you would object to Leila's running around with Dicky to the same extent."

I glanced from under my half-closed eyelashes at him, and chuckled at the queer expression which flashed into his face at the thrust. Sauce for the gander was distinctly not sauce for the goose in this particular case, I saw clearly, and with a mental calculation that the subway journey remaining was just about long enough for the things I meant to say, I turned to him resolutely.

"It's not particularly clubby to say what I'm going to, but——"

"Just one second," he interrupted. "You've got to know this first, before you say anything. I've cut Bess out, haven't telephoned her, or taken her anywhere or anything since Mother's operation when Leila collapsed. Remember?"

I nodded with a vivid memory flash of his gentle wife's tortured face.

"You ought to know I wouldn't do anything to hurt Leila—especially now"—he added significantly—"and I don't intend to go near Bess again. But I can't be rude to her, can I, when she comes to the office as she did to-day, or calls me up? She's always been a corking friend to us all, and it looks like pretty small potatoes to——"

"A Corking Pest!"

"She's been a corking pest," I exploded, but careful to keep my voice discreetly lowered. "It's time you knew the truth, Alf—if you weren't as blind as a bat you'd have seen it long ago. Bess Dean isn't particularly unprincipled, nor is she wicked. She simply is vanity mad, and she isn't capable of any emotion for anyone. But she would sacrifice anything almost to gratify her vanity and feed a grudge. She has an old account with me, and she tried once and signally failed to hurt me through Dicky. It sounds rather conceited to say that she tried to hurt Leila through you because she knew I loved Leila, but I am sure that was her original motive. And as long as she can bamboozle you into believing her a good friend whose feelings it would be disloyal to hurt, you can wager your last cent that she is going to do everything she can to prove to Leila that the old intimacy exists. If you really want to save Leila heartache at this critical time, you'll make it clear to Miss Dean that her presence is unwelcome if you have to tell her flatly, and forbid her coming to your office or telephoning you. I'll warrant you that you'll get a glimpse of the real nature behind that good-comrade exterior when you do."

The train was drawing into the station. I gathered my cloak about me and rose, Alfred springing to his feet beside me.

"You don't need to take my word alone for all this," I said, as we made our way to the door, "although I believe you will do me the justice to say that you never have heard me—what is it you say, wield the hammer?—on any acquaintance before. But I think, if you ask Dicky flatly he will corroborate every word I've said."

HOME-MAKING HELPS

Housewife Should Have Comfortable Work Accessories

By WANDA BARTON

WOMEN who are energetic and do most of the work in their kitchens seldom stop to consider their own comfort until something more or less serious arises to force them to think of themselves. As long as Mother keeps going without complaint the family does not stop to think of whether she is comfortable. They don't mean to be selfish or inconsiderate, but they are just thoughtless. So it is up to Mother to think of herself a little, even before necessity compels her to do so.

Do women dress comfortably for the work they have to do? In most instances they do not. Their feet are not half so well cared for as they should be. It should be remembered that the kitchen is no place to wear out old shoes that are ripped at the back or shoes with high or turned heels. This is a mistaken economy. It is wise to wear a pair of soft shoes with low or medium heels. Those that lace support the ankles best. Stockings should be well-fitting, of soft thin cotton or lisle thread, and should be gray or white, rather than black.

Housewives should also equip themselves with loose but comfortable clothes that are warm, but light in weight. Decide on some simple way to "do" your hair, so that it is comfortable and presentable. If you use glasses don't wear old or broken ones in the kitchen, but get a pair of spectacles that do not drop off easily.

Above all, sit down and eat your meals properly. Make the children do the serving, aided by a serving or tea-wagon. Learn to sit down while paring fruit or vegetables, and so conserve your energy. Save yourself steps by planning and thinking.

Implements for cleaning should be on each floor of the house in order to avoid extra trips up and down the stairs. One woman placed out on her back porch a hinged-top box and all tradespeople put their orders inside the box if she was upstairs or out. She had a slate to fasten on the door and wrote on it messages for order boys. She had another sign which said, "Beggars or pedlers do not knock as I never trade with passing salesmen, or encourage begging." This saved her many trips up and down the stairs.

Every woman who does her own work needs an hour's relaxation during the day and a nap after luncheon is convenient as well as beneficial. A large mail box takes all magazines and small packages, as it saves the housewife many unnecessary steps.

A well-equipped bathroom and a comfortable bed are two absolute necessities for the busy woman who must keep fit for her tasks. Good lighting, especially good reading lamps, is important. Tight doors and windows are first aids to a good heating system. Blinds and awnings are quite as necessary for Summer comfort.

Chairs are of great importance to your comfort. You should have chairs just the right height to allow your feet to rest comfortably on the floor and the height of the tables should be right for the chairs. Hair cushions are best for straight chairs and soft cushions for lounging chairs. A foot-rest is an added comfort.

These things cost but little. Yet they are above price as life-savers for the busy woman who would sacrifice herself without need.

BLOWING whither it listeth with none to see whence it comes or whither it goes, the wind, nevertheless, does Love a good turn in its hurrying. They'd have passed in the street with longing in hearts barred forever from contact by that high wall called "convention," save only that the wind flashed by and gave into his very hands the proud little Spring chapeau she wore! What more natural than her "Thank you!"? What more likely than another word and another, and the two of them arriving—via friendship—where Love is?

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT An Example of Mother Love

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

HERE is another story of mother love going the rounds of the newspapers and making us all rub our eyes as we read and then sigh, and say, "It is always so."

One thousand miles, from Sioux Falls to Detroit, walked Mrs. Mary Hansen, a woman well beyond middle age, and all the way she had but one thought, to reach and care for her sick boy, her only child now, for the other son she lost in the great World War.

It was three weeks from the time she heard of her son's illness, that she arrived in Detroit and took up her station by his sick bed. In the snow and in the rain, over highways and paths and over fields she walked, and at last found the goal of her dreams and her toils.

Appealing to Kind Hearts

But why did she not get help and take the trains across country, we say, not remembering the timid nature of a poor woman whose only rule was to take the road and walk to the place where she found her task awaiting her.

It would be enthralling to sit and hear from this heroine an account of her journey and of the roofs she slept under along the way. For without doubt she appealed to many a kindly heart and equally without doubt she found food, shelter and warm beds along her way.

No one need imagine that she went to the mansions along her 1,000 mile trip for shelter. She called upon those of her own stinted life for what she needed, and from them she received the help she required. Now that her journey is ended she is receiving help from the American Legion—in recognition of the loss of her other son in the war. And now, without doubt, the worst of this brave woman's troubles are over. But she will never forget—and no one who knows or has heard of her will forget—that walk of a thousand miles of the mother to her son.

We sometimes smile over the stories and songs of home and mother, but when into the knowledge of the heart comes some such story as this of Mary Hansen, the fountains of tenderness in our hearts flow again.

And we sing again the old song and croon it to ourselves as we remember all we have heard and read and known of the love which never falters:

"Over my heart in the days that have flown
No love like mother love ever has shone."

How the old lines shine out of the darkness which has enveloped them for many a year!

You don't know them?

Why they are from a song which swept over the world one time, "Rock Me to Sleep."

Has not every earnest and lovely memory or every beautiful love and hope been expressed in song, I wonder?

Strong and Tender Still

Here among the hurry crowds of men, women and children, breathing out into the air and cherished deep in the heart, these songs remain and though they grow old, they never die, at least until all the hearts that love them are dead.

Mother love is alive and as strong and tender as ever, we may be sure. It did not need a Mary Hansen to show us, perhaps, but ever it is the same, some mother rises in her mighty love and tells us that the old mother love we at times forget still lives, as does all that is good and courageous and self-forgetful.

So comes the lesson in the daily press.

Advice to Girls ☘ By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

1.—We are two chums who have recently won town beauty and popularity prizes, but we are horribly disapointed because of our unpopularity among young men. Is it because we object to "petting parties?" Should we join in the midnight spooning rides? Please advise us.

2.—Should we suggest to a young man that we visit his home?

M. AND K.

M. AND K.: 1—Your refusal to participate in "petting parties" cannot possibly make you unpopular among the young men who are worth while. And these are the only kind you care about, aren't they? Keep your standards high and form real friendships with young men. The most successful way of doing this is by finding interests in common with them. Read, be wide-awake and alert. Develop your mind and forget your victory in the contest. Perhaps you have been a little too proud of this.

3.—No. You should visit a young man's home only at the request of his parents.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have a young man friend who was in love with a friend of mine. But she did not care anything for him and refused any attentions he showed her and made very unkind remarks about him.

He began going with me about a year ago and was very attentive and would often ask me to ask this friend to go out with us. She would go, but would make remarks afterward about him. I grew to like him.

His work was changed and he was sent to a new locality. He writes to me regularly, but tells me every once in a while how fond he is of this friend and how she ignores him.

I did not know until after he went away that he was so fond of her. I thought he merely asked her to go with us because she was a friend of mine. Should I try to forget him? This will be very hard for me to do. But possibly it will be easier now than later.

ANXIOUS.

ANXIOUS: There is no reason for you to give up this young man's friendship if you will be sensible about the entire matter and think of him merely as a friend, my dear. Perhaps you can make yourself so charming a companion and correspondent that he will prefer you to the other girl who seems insincere.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Pam Sees a Lovely Daytime Frock at a Fashion Showing.

"I'VE just been to a delightful fashion showing," Pam said as she came in and threw her hat unceremoniously upon a chair.

"You should be more careful with that," I said reprovingly, nodding toward the cunning litte sports hat she had thrown aside so casually.

"I remember when you bought it and prized it very highly," I added.

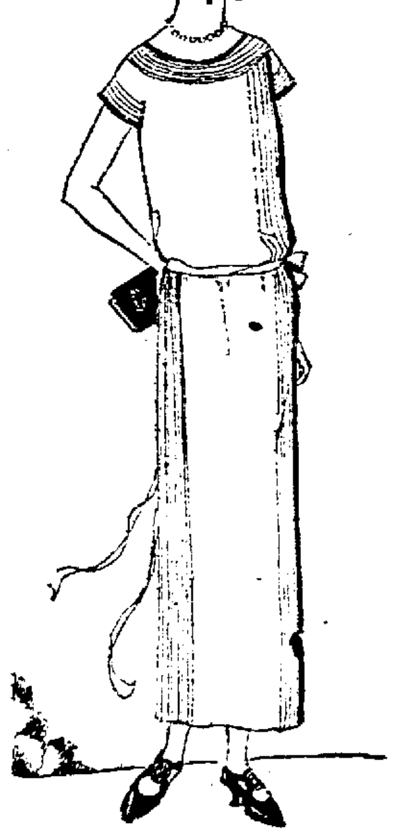
"But if you'd just seen as many adorable straws as I have, you wouldn't think a little camel's hair hat like that amounted to much," she returned.

"Now don't begin to feel proud because you've seen a lot of pretty Summer things that you can't afford to have," I said teasingly.

"Well, the nice thing is that most of the costumes aren't so awfully expensive, especially if one can sew," Pam told me.

"Let's hear about them," I urged.

"Well, there was one simple little frock worn with a cunning hat, both of which could be acquired," she said hopefully.



Fine Yellow Binding Gives Color to This White Crepe Frock.

"It was white crepe de Chine bound in yellow," she added.

"If there's one combination I like very much, it is white and yellow," I said approvingly.

"This frock was short-sleeved and youthful, and the colors made me think of sunshine and bright Summer days," Pam raved on.

"How was it made, may I ask?" I put in gently.

"Just with tiny pin-tucks around the neck and on the short sleeves and down either side," she answered.

"It was bound in buttercup yellow about the neck and on either sleeve and down the closing side," she continued. "And that's about all there was."

"Sounds simple to make," I observed.

"That's what I said," Pam returned.

"The hat was just as simple and effective," she added.

"Could you make it yourself?" I asked.

"I doubt that," Pam answered. "You see it was black milan straw, at least the crown was."

"And the brim?" I questioned.

"Well, there really wasn't any brim," Pam told me. "It was only yellow ribbon pinched into cunning points that stuck out from the hat."

"You could make those," I reassured her.

"Yes, if I could look at some and see just how they are folded," she said. "But any clever milliner could make it for me if I drew it for her."

"I should think the same outfit would be attractive in that lovely new leaf green," I remarked.

"Or orange or powder blue or rose," Pam said. "I think a simple costume like that offers infinite possibilities in the color line."

"Yes," I agreed. "Any clear bright color is lovely by itself or with white in a simple frock of that kind."

YOUR HEALTH

Rickets Will Never Develop If Baby Has Proper Care

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

A YEAR or two ago I wrote several articles about rickets. This week the happy mother of a baby restored to health wrote me in appreciative tone because of what sunlight did for her child. She had acted on the suggestion that exposure to the sun may be better than medicine.

To my mind the finest of modern gifts are presented to the body. The improved health of the little ones and their constantly increasing chance of living are among the most striking accomplishments of civilization.

The popular belief that the pioneer days were safer from a health standpoint is not founded on fact. Within a period of a half century eleven years have been added to the expectancy of life. This happy evidence of progress is founded to a great extent upon the improved conditions in the early age groups—the babies and the children under five years of age.

Civilization must give special attention to the children, because many of the conditions of modern life are very trying to little folks. For instance, a baby's chance of living is much reduced if he is born in a house of two rooms, instead of arriving in a house of six rooms.

Crowded quarters, lack of air and sunlight, and the absence of the ordinary comforts are as detrimental to a baby as to an adult. Indeed, they are more serious to the baby, because they bring death to him, while they may result merely in impairment of health to the adult.

If the baby lacks certain elements, or if the baby fails to utilize these elements, there will result softening of the bones and a long train of disagreeable symptoms.

The head is big and the face is drawn. The tiny features under the bulging forehead, the flat head and the toothless mouth are unmistakable. The child is bow-legged and his spine is crooked. He is pigeon-breasted and his ribs are beaded, rather than smooth.

These are some of the symptoms of a disease we call rickets. In addition the abdomen of the rickety child is much enlarged. The muscles are weak and flabby. All in all, the poor youngster is in a deplorable condition.

Fortunately, this is one of the diseases which can be avoided. It will never develop if proper care is given the infant. Sunshine, fresh air and proper feeding will prevent it. Likewise, these simple, natural things will cure rickets.

Rickets is a disease due to a deprivation of lime, or to the failure of the system to assimilate the lime contained in the food. Just exactly what is wrong is not fully understood, but certain facts regarding the disease have been well established.

Without material change in the feeding, continuous exposure of the child to the sunshine and fresh air will overcome rickets. This indicates that the light has some mysterious effect upon the system. It causes it to function in such a way as to absorb the minerals needed.

The administration of cod-liver oil several times a day will correct the rickety condition. A teaspoonful or more may be given three times a day.

Needless to say the child should have the bathing, regular feeding and the daily routine essential to the prosperity of any baby. If you treat your baby as the young of animals are treated you will not go astray. To pamper and shield the youngster is a mistake. Constant bathing in fresh air and sunlight will ward off rickets and most other ailments.

Answers to Health Questions

MISS J. A. Q.—When one is tapped on the knee and the limb does not move, does this prove that the nerves are paralyzed or just partly paralyzed?

2.—Kindly advise me about ——.

A.—When the limb does not move after striking it usually indicates the possibility of disease of the nervous system.

2.—For full particulars kindly send a self-addressed stamped envelope restating your question.

F. R. Q.—A friend of mine was told that her only cure for gall bladder trouble would be the removal of that organ. Is this a dangerous operation?

A.—If the physician advises an operation she should abide by his judgment, since he has been treating her and understands her case. If her general condition is good an operation would very likely prove successful.

* * *

H. A. Q.—Please advise me about a tickling sensation in the throat and occasionally a cough. This condition has been going on for three or four years. My chest has been examined and pronounced O. K.

A.—You are probably suffering from chronic bronchitis. Your symptoms might also be due to a long palate. Consult your physician about this condition and get his opinion on your case.

* * *

HEAVY WEIGHT. Q.—Is it harmful to play strenuous games? I am a girl, fifteen years of age and weigh 176 pounds.

A.—It is not harmful for you to play strenuous games if your heart is normal. However, you weigh too much and should find ways to reduce. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope and we will suggest a way to you.

* * *

E. A. Q.—Is it harmful to giv cocoa to children between the age of three and ten years? What ar the ill effects from this daily use?

A.—You may give them cocoa in reasonable quantities, made in the usual way with milk, about one teaspoonful of cocoa being used per day. Too much cocoa is not easily digested and is too rich to give in larger amounts than that specified above to young children.

* * *

X. Y. Z. Q.—My hands and feet are nearly always cold at night. What causes this?

2.—Will a hollow-chested person be benefited by gymnasium work?

A.—This condition comes from poor circulation. Kindly send self-addressed and stamped envelope for a more detailed answer to this inquiry.

2.—Yes; exercise will benefit this condition and also develop the rest of the body.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, MARCH 16—17.

Sunday's horoscope holds promise of advancement or recognition for those in the employment of others, but otherwise it forebodes disappointment. The money should be protected and false friends shunned.

Those whose birthday it is, if in the employment of others, may expect recognition in return for application and industry, but others may encounter setbacks. Beware treachery and do not risk the money. A child born on this day may make its best success in the employment of others.

Monday's astrological chart presages annoyances and anxieties, most of the planets holding unfriendly positions. Those in the employment of others should be careful to sign all writings with caution. Money should not be subjected to any manner of hazard. Domestic and love affairs may cause worry.

Those whose birthday it is are liable to encounter a year of complication in many directions. They should sign all writings carefully, safeguard employment and not risk the money. A child born on this day may have many difficulties to meet unless it is well trained.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

FINE VISION OF FUTURE

PIONEERS REVIEW THE PAST AND GUESS THE FUTURE.

Chamber of Commerce Semi-Centennial Honors the People of Fifty Years' Service at Celebration.

The pioneers of Lincoln, the folks who were here when the Lincoln board of trade was organized, thronged the chamber of commerce building on Friday night. There were plenty of other people there, but the half century folks had the right of way. The others may see the exhibits on Saturday and use the building on other days, but so far as the committee could arrange it, this night belonged to the pioneers.

They were received by Mayor Zehrung at the head of a committee of the daughters of the original incorporations of the board of trade in 1874. They looked over the city planning exhibit in the parlors, gave a preliminary look at the exhibits in the annex dining room and settled down in the main dining room to see stereopticon pictures of fifty years of Lincoln in charge of Dr. H. B. Alexander and Dr. G. E. Condra. Dr. A. L. Bixby read his poem. Roy Wall sang songs of the period of fifty years ago, and Prof. H. O. Ferguson's newly organized chamber of commerce glee club gave some rousing selections. There were letters from prominent people who had lived here, talks by pioneers and a good time generally.

Dr. Condra's pictures began with the raw land, showed the first methods of transportation, the coming of the capitol and the railroads and then the growth from a straggling village to a large and beautiful city. He called for help and comment from the old settlers and at one time asked for those who had settled here before 1874 to rise as the years were called and tell when they arrived. Mrs. Young, daughter-in-law of Elder Young who was famous as a pioneer settler, claimed the longest residence in the present city, her husband having taken a homestead here in 1863, while she came in 1865. The name is a familiar one to all who are acquainted with city maps, as Young's subdivision will always keep the name of the family alive. There was some good-natured contest over priority in the county, which it is hoped to settle by the registration of old settlers now in progress. To carry on the work begun by the chamber in this celebration a committee has been appointed with full power to act. It consists of E. P. Brown, Mayor F. C. Zehrung, A. E. Sheldon, Mrs. A. S. Raymond and Dr. H. B. Alexander.

The Lincoln of the next fifty years was visioned by Frank D. Tomson. After surveying the growth of the last half century he said:

"Now we have a new Lincoln, appealing in its aspect, impressive in its proportions, expanding everywhere, yet retaining its close relationship to the resources and the traditions which had a par in its origin and earlier development. A home city always, a home city it will always be, with education, morality and neighborly relations controlling factors."

After the program the people returned to the exhibition room or gathered in groups in the corridors exchanging pioneer talks and planing for future gatherings. So many asked that the exhibit be kept intact that a Monday display will be arranged if possible.

The program of the first day of the celebration, which closed with the evening, was carried out fully as announced. The history of the city was pictured and described in the schools by E. C. Folsom, J. D. Bushnell and J. E. Lawrence. H. H. Wilson spoke before the high school in the morning, giving a sketch of the founding of the city and the significant events in its subsequent growth.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW

Beta Theta Pi fraternity will entertain 100 guests for luncheon at the chamber of commerce Saturday noon in honor of their national president, Francis W. Shephardson, Denison chapter, class of '82, of Chicago. Mr. Shephardson will arrive in Lincoln Saturday morning at 8 o'clock and will leave for his home in Chicago late Saturday evening. Deans of the colleges of the University of Nebraska, Chancellor Avery and several faculty members will be guests at the luncheon. The chancellor and Mr. Shephardson will be called upon to make a few remarks. Saturday afternoon, the fraternity will hold an initiation at the Knights of Pythias hall. Saturday evening they will entertain 200 guests at a banquet which will be held at the chamber of commerce. Mr. Shephardson will be the guest of honor as well as the principal speaker. Prof. M. M. Fogg will act as toastmaster and will call on four or five men to respond with short talks. There will be a delegation of alumni from Omaha and several from other parts of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Leonard entertained at a pre-nuptial dinner at their home, 1937 F, Friday evening, complimenting their daughter, Louise, and John Frazier, whose marriage takes place Saturday evening. Covers were arranged for fifteen guests and included only immediate members of the two families. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Frazier, parents of the groom, of Norfolk, Va., Mrs. A. G. Beeson of Omaha, and Mrs. F. C. Valentine of Minneapolis. Various colored sweetpeas formed the decorations on the table and thruout the rooms.

A hundred and twenty couples attended the Silver Lynx spring party at the Lincoln hotel, Friday evening. It took form of a St. Patrick's party, with decorations of shamrocks on backgrounds of varied colors. A nine piece orchestra sat behind a frame work decorated with colored streamers above which was the electric fraternity emblem. Refreshments were punch with shredded cocoanut balls. Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Barbour and Prof. and Mrs. Earl Lantz were the sponsors.

The American Legion auxiliary is making plans to entertain at a St. Patrick's day party to be given at the Legion club rooms, Sixteenth and O streets, on Monday evening September 17th. Before the party the regular business meeting of the auxiliary will be held from eight to nine, and to this meeting are invited all women who are the wives, mothers, sisters and daughters of ex-service men. During the meeting the men guests of the auxiliary will be entertained in the club room and after it is finished all will unite in enjoying a varied program appropriate to Ireland's patron saint. There will be cards for those who do not care to dance and Irish melodies for those who do. A feature of the program will be a St. Patrick's dance in costume by dainty little Miss Josephine Ferguson, pupil of Marjorie Barstow. The committee in charge of the entertainment is composed of Mesdames Fred Craig, O. J. Bilhorne, G. C. Ferguson and Harty Rokahr.

CASSIUS H. MARSH IS DEAD

Pioneer of Nemaha County and Former Lincoln Publisher.

BROWNVILLE, Neb., March 14.—Cassius H. Marsh, reared in Brownville, where he learned the printer's trade on the Brownville Advertiser, died this afternoon on his farm a few miles west of here, following an extended illness. He was about sixty years of age, one of the well known and universally esteemed pioneer residents of Nemaha county. He was for several years a printer on the Lincoln State Journal at a period over thirty years ago, going from there to Omaha, where he secured an interest in the Nebraska Farmer, and retained that interest when the publication was moved to Lincoln. He sold his stock to former Governor McKelvie and about twelve years ago purchased a farm near the home of his youth, where he has since lived.

Mr. Marsh is survived by a widow, son and daughter. The date of the funeral has not been announced.

LINCOLN PIONEER IS CALLED BY DEATH

W. J. Blystone, Former Legislator and Prominent G. A. R. Man, Dies at Home Friday Afternoon.

W. J. Blystone, resident of Lincoln for more than thirty years, Nebraska pioneer and department commander of the G. A. R. of Nebraska in 1920 and a member of the state legislature in 1907, died at 2:30 p. m. Friday at his home at 1301 North Thirty-third street. He was an Indiana soldier who came to Nebraska in the early sixties and located in southeastern Nebraska. He drove an ox team over the trail and freighted merchandise to Denver. He has long been prominent in G. A. R. circles. He was commander of Farragut post No. 25, of Lincoln in 1901. For more than ten years he was chairman of the soldiers' relief committee of Lancaster county. Mr. Blystone has attended a number of national encampments of the G. A. R. He was elected department commander for Nebraska in May, 1920 and served one year. He was a member of the G. A. R. quartet of Farragut post. Before removing to Lincoln he was a farmer in Pawnee county. He was much interested in the development of east Lincoln and owned considerable property. He is survived by a son, Samuel, whose home is at Hastings. He was a member of Grace Methodist church. He was active in civic affairs and at the time of his death was a member of sanitary district No. 1. His wife, who died several years ago, was long active in the G. A. R. auxiliary organizations.

O. C. Bell, department commander of the G. A. R. and Assistant Adjutant General Harmon Bross stated that they wished to extend their sympathy to the relatives and friends of Mr. Blystone. Mr. Bell said the loss was great to Farragut post of Lincoln. The deceased was a member of the quartet of the post and was always present at the meetings and social gatherings of the G. A. R.

MRS. ENSLIN GIVEN VERDICT BY JURY

Gets Four Thousand Dollars From the Lincoln Traction Company in a Personal Damage Suit.

A verdict of $4,000 for the plaintiff was awarded late Friday night, in the case of Mrs. Lulu Mae Enslin, who asked $25,000 for personal injuries, from the Lincoln Traction Company. Mrs. Enslin was carried into the courtroom on a stretcher and fainted while testifying Wednesday. The judge was forced to call a recess until she recovered.

Mrs. Enslin claimed that on August 23, 1923 when she was in the act of decending from one of the Traction company's cars the conductor caused the patent folding doors to close before she had had time to alight and that she was seriously injured. She said that the shock was so great that she did not know just what she was doing and was barely able to reach home.

The Traction company claimed that Mrs. Enslin was not injured in the accdient and as far as they were responsible there was nothing the matter with her. They blamed the plaintiff for pushing against the door which will not function correctly if that is done because of the compressed air mechanism. Miss Lulu Belle Love, a nurse at the Lincoln Sanitarium testified that the door did not hit Mrs. Enslin. E. R. Henry, transportation manager of the Traction company testified that he has had the folding doors to be slammed against his legs with the hardest possible force and suffered not the slgihtest injury.

COLLEGE ALUMNI MEET

Peru Normal Annual Dinner Held at Grand Hotel—C. Ray Gates Made President.

The Peru Alumni association of Peru Normal held its annual dinner and election of officers at the Grand hotel, Friday evening. The new officers are:

Superintendent C. Ray Gates, of Grand Island, president.

Sanford L. Clements, of Lincoln, vice president.

Emily Burton of Peru, treasurer.

W. N. Delzell of Peru, secretary.

Trustees: Charles B. Letton, Mrs. W. K. Fowler, Superintendent R. R. McGee of Columbus.

Superintendent W. G. Brooks of York, president of the association, presided at the dinner. Earl Cline delivered the address of welcome. President W. R. Pate gave a short talk in response. Short talks were given by Chief Justice Morrissey, Col. T. J. Majors and Judge Charles B. Letton. Following the addresses and election of officers, the school yells were given and the old class songs were sung. Supt. E. L. Rouse and Dr. Beattie former presidents of the association were guests. Judge Charles B. Letton was the oldest member present, and the only member of the class of '78. The organization has a membership of three thousand. One hundred and two were present at the dinner.

LIVESTOCK MEN BANQUET

Hundred and Forty Attend Dinner at the Grand Hotel Friday Evening.

The Lancaster County Livestock Breeders' association held a banquet and barbecue at the Grand hotel Friday evening, with one hundred and forty members and ladies present. Ex-Governor McKelvie was the speaker of the evening. His subject was, "The Future of Purebred Livestock." Mr. McKelvie in comparing the livestock business with other businesses showed that it had pulled thru the hard times as well as most of them and better than many. He said that if the farmer is going to raise stock, he might just as well raise purebred stock. If he is not going to raise purebred stock he had better not raise any, and if he is not going to raise any stock, he had better get off the farm. In speaking of the future of the stock business, he remarked that it looked very good, and that now is a good time to get into the game.

Following the dinner and talk, the company was entertained by several readings by Miss Alice Olmsted. A humorous mock trial, that caused much merriment, was then staged by the members, who had considerable trouble in picking the jury. The men were dressed to represent country rustics. Carnations decorated the room and table and were also given as favors.

JUDGE FROST TAKES OATH

Judge Lincoln Frost, who was appointed to the district bench by the governor to succeed the late Judge Morning, filed his oath of office at the statehouse late Friday afternoon. It is expected that he will assume his bench duties Saturday. The judge, who is a pioneer in the court of domestic relations and juvenile work, will have charge of the equity docket, as did Judge Morning.

Minor S. Bacon, official shorthand reporter, who was with Judge Morning for several years was reappointed to that post by Judge Frost. Mr. Bacon's appointment and oath of office were also filed Friday.

MONEY IS NEEDED FOR THE SCHOOLS

If Education Is to Be Made Worth While Dollars Must Be Forthcoming, Educator Tells the Teachers.

"The object of educators who are spending billions of dollars is to make education a thing worth while" said W. A. Jessup, president of the Iowa State university, in a speech to the Nebraska teachers at Saint Paul church Friday evening. The address was preceded by a concert presented by the Lincoln chamber of commerce glee club, under the direction of H. O. Ferguson.

The subject of Mr. Jessup's talk was "The School and the Tax." He pointed out that the people gladly paid for the education of their children, and showed that the methods of teaching were being made better by leaps and bounds. He said that it was no wonder the people thought that too much money was being spent but they should take into consideration the advantages that are being gotten out of it.

AGRICULTURE IS TAUGHT

Night schools are being formed for the teaching of agriculture by the state department of vocational education for those who are unable to attend school. J. H. Pearson of the department, told the members of the agriculture group conference of the teachers' association at its annual meeting at the Lindell hotel Friday afternoon. Agricultural courses have already been established in thirty-four of the high schools and as there is money for that purpose, the work is being steadily expanded.

Dr. Charles Fordyce of the teachers' college of the state university discussed "Education and the Mental Level of the Child" at the annual meeting of the child study conference at the Lindell hotel Friday afternoon. He showed by charts the findings in the study of several hundred children which showed that the teacher may thru mental testing, foreshadow the educational career of the child. These studies were made in the schools of Lincoln, Beatrice, University Place and Havelock indicate that 60 to 70 per cent of the retardation in the schools is due in the main to the fact that the retardates are below normal in mental endowment.

Prof. F. M. Gregg of Wesleyan university presided. Other papers on the program to be delivered by Dr. Katherine Wolfe and Mrs. Marie Churchill of Lincoln were deferred for the next meeting.

The mathematics section of the state teachers' association ceased to exist at the annual meeting at the Lindell hotel Friday afternoon. In its place was born another organization known as the Nebraska chapter of the mathematical association of America. It will meet at the call of the president. Whether it will convene when the delegate assembly meets has not been determined. The officers of the new organization are:

President, W. C. Brenke, Lincoln.

Secretary, Miss Emma Hanthorn, Kearney.

THE WIFE WHO WON

By Fay Stevenson

(Copyright, 1924, New York World, Press Publishing Co.)

Silver Threads.

"I wish I had enough hair to show when it gets gray," responded Jacques. "Ursula, I don't care how gray you get or how many crow's-feet appear about your eyes, you've got the right spirit, and that will always be youthful."

"Thank you, my dear. Is there anything special you'd like me to prepare for dinner?"

"You know what I mean, old top. I mean you won me over with such force that you'll never lose me, even tho you thought there was a time when you might. You'll have to rub my rheumatism away from my shoulders and give me my last medicine, Ursula. Maybe some day you'll wish I'd run off with my secretary or Viola."

"Silver threads among the gold stuff," laughed Ursula, coming over to his side and sitting on the arm of his chair. "Jacques, you were too dear to lose. I couldn't see you make a fool of yourself and then I—I—"

"Of course, you wanted me. You [illegible] me, Ursula, and when a wife [illegible] her husband she'll find a way to keep him. It was that magnetic overpowering love of yours which made me realize what you were to me. Ursula dear, it wasn't your bobbed hair or your new gowns or [illegible] [illegible] which kept me [illegible] you. That may have helped, [illegible] helped on the fact perhaps that I knew the sincerity of your love, but it was that trusting look in your eyes which told me more.

"Not once were you jealous, naggy or catty. Not once did you ask me to explain why I was late or ask me to discharge Belle Whipple. A man hates nagging or prying. You never let me know how worried you were. You just forged ahead; invited interesting people to the house and went in for the sort of entertainment you thought I liked."

"And if I'd shown how jealous I was (for I was green-eyed many times)," confessed Ursula, "what do you suppose would have happened?"

"We'd be in the divorce courts or separated each leading our own lives. Belle Whipple might have been the co-respondent, or if it hadn't been Belle it would have been some one else."

"As it is, Belle has married, Viola is on her honeymoon with her boyhood sweetheart, and—"

"I'm so glad I didn't try to flirt with some other man or give vent to my jealousy," signed Ursula contentedly as she watched Jacques fill his pipe and settle down for an evening at home.

"Mrs. Rhineland-Smith and Gary Webster," announced Ursula.

"Say Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Bond are not at home," said husband and wife in chorus.

The End.

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL IS FILED

C. A. Sherman, Head of Detective Bureau, Convicted of Blackmail, Asks for Rehearing of Case.

C. A. Sherman, head of the Nebraska National Detective Bureau, who was convicted by a jury in Judge Stewart's court March 12, of conspiracy to blackmail by threat of extortion, filed a motion for a new trial in the office of the district clerk late Friday evening.

In his motion, Sherman included an affidavit to the effect that he had newly discovered evidence which would materially aid him in establishing his inocence if a new trial were granted. He also objected to all of the instructions given the jury by the judge, on the ground that they were contrary to law.

It was charged that April 23, 1923, Sherman arrested Wesley Merica of Benedict and Clara Remington of Polk, when they were alleged to have been discovered living together at a local rooming house.

The testimony then disclosed that Sherman took them to the private office of Justice Stevens' with John Lowe's cooperation, $143 was secured for services in getting the couple out of "trouble" when no charge had been filed against them, or, it is alleged could be filed against them, and they were in no trouble.

HYATT LOSES DAMAGE SUIT

John Hyatt lost his suit against the Lincoln Traction company late Friday afternoon. Hyatt was suing for $10,000 for damages and personal injuries received when a street car is alleged to have collided with him at Sixteenth and O streets, November 8, 1923. He said that the car was traveling at an unlawful rate of speed.

Hyatt stated that he believed the crossing to be clear and started across it when the street car struck his Ford sedan and turned it over, breaking the glass. He claimed that he suffered cuts and bruises and injury to his nervous system. He was also at expense for doctor bills and repairs to his car. The defendants denied responsibility for the accident.

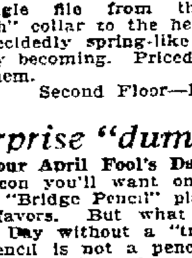
A Winner
The "Zev" Sandal is a winner in the footrace for Fashion's leaders, this season. Perhaps it's because of the novel strap feature introduced, to be worn either around the ankle or under the instep, or it may be because of its popular colors. It comes in Tan Elk, Airedale, Jack Rabbit, Black Patent and Pearl Elk. The cutout effect is most unique and its flat heel gives a real Oriental sandal effect and makes it ideal for street and semi-dress wear. Only 7.50 pair.
Shoes—Second Floor.

Fashion Falls--
Fashion leaves the "straight and narrow" tailored style in Spring Lingerie—but you can't blame her with such dainty trimmings as one may have. We've just received some beautiful French Lingerie ribbons in pastel shades with contrasting edges and plain or with embroidered "bars." They are too lovely to pass, so of course you'll want some, and we are the only ones to have them in Lincoln. Come Pink with Orchid edge; Orchid with Pink; Coral with Pekin; Blue with Pink; Pink with Blue. In three widths for straps, for trimmings and for around the top. Priced 15c, 25c and 35c yard.
Ribbons—Main Floor.



"Bosom" Friends--
Milady's suit and blouse are sure to become "bosom" friends if the blouse is one of our new colored Voile overblouses in Pigtail Blue, Rose, Fallow, Orchid or Green. It will probably have a tucked or shirred bosom in self-color or white, emphasizing the mannish effect extended even to blouses. If not, there will be glass buttons in a single file from the round "Dutch" collar to the hem. They are decidedly spring-like and unusually becoming. Priced ea. 5.75. See them.
Second Floor—Blouses.

For your April Fool's Day Bridge Luncheon you'll want one of the clever "Bridge Pencil" place cards and favors. But what is April Fool's Day without a "trick"—for the pencil is not a pencil at all, but a piece of wood covered with row after row of Crepe Paper in the color to harmonize with your color scheme. A pert little butterfly holds the name card and adds to the decorative note. These are made to order in our Stationery Section and are priced 1.50 dozen. Place your order early.

Lionel Cooper, convicted of rape in Phelps county and sentenced to from five to seven years, was brought to Lincoln Saturday by Sheriff Hanson of Holdrege. Cooper's conviction was in connection with alleged abuse of a fourteen-year-old niece.

S. A. Challman, of Minneapolis and S. S. Bloss of Lawrence, Kas., who were staying at a fraternity house, Friday night reported to the police Saturday that they had lost money from their pockets during the night. Mr. Challman lost $50 and Mr. Bloss, $4.25.

German postoffices are again ready to handle parcels mail in the occupied districts, Postmaster McClay was informed Saturday. It is necessary, however, for senders to notify the addressees in advance, giving them plenty of time to obtain import licenses. Otherwise packages cannot be delivered.

The county boards of Clay and Webster counties have filed a formal complaint with the railway commission asking that the Missouri Pacific road be required to build an under-pass north of Delphi where the grade crossing on a highway is alleged to be unsafe for vehicles on the highway. The railroad track at that point is on the county line.

Nine bids on five volumes of the supreme court reports were received by State Purchasing Agent J. R. Farris Saturday noon. The lowest bid was by Claflin Printing company, $2.50 a page. The highest bid was $4.93 a page. In November, 1921, the lowest bid on this printing was $2.29 a page. The state has the privilege of having an additional five volumes printed at the rate of the lowest bid. The volumes will average over 900 pages each.

District Attorney Stewart finished his work at Hastings Friday and came home, several defendants having expedited court procedure by pleading guilty. One of these was Ralph P. Brittenham, former postmaster at Ruskin, Nuckolls county indicted for embezzlement. He pleaded guilty to having appropriated more than $2,600 on four occasions. Judge Munger will return to Hastings Monday to sentence several offenders, and to hear civil cases.

Literature and instructions for the Community Chest drive were distributed Saturday at the chamber of commerce to the team captains for their 300 workers. Districts were assigned to the teams and the workers instructed to start work Monday morning and report at the Grand hotel at noon. All the work of raising the $125,000 is to be done by Lincoln people. The budget includes thirteen organizations, members of the council of social agencies. August Eiche is president of the chest, O. J. Fee secretary and C. C. Carlsen treasurer.

The railway commission will hold a hearing next Thursday on a motion of the Missouri Pacific road to reopen the Trenmor Cone case. The road desires a rehearing on the commission's order which requires the railroad to open its team tracks in Omaha, on the old belt line, to traffic from other railroads. This order becomes effective April 1 unless rescinded by the commission. The commission will hold a hearing Friday on applications of the Rock Island railroad to move depots at Meadow Grove and South Bend. If the depots are moved nearer interlocking towers, farther away from town, the depots will ge kept open day and night instead of eight hours each day.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

Hugh Lamaster, assistant attorney general, is back from Washington, where he went, with George W. Ayres of the same office to argue the appeals of three of the railroads from state tax valuations. Mr. Ayres returns Sunday. The cases were not reached and the attorneys will have to make the journey again. The three cases are definitely set for the session beginning April 7. Only the Burlington was set for Thursday of this week, and if it had been reached the state's attorneys would have had to make a second journey to try the others.

H. H. Holcomb, freight traffic manager of the Burlington, at Chicago, is in Lincoln attending the Leonard-Frazier wedding.

MR. COWGILL ON LAWYERS

SAYS HIS NEED OF ONE IS NOT IDLE SORT OF BUNK.

Applicant Should Not Only Have Legal Training But Be Well Educated in Diplomacy and Salesmanship.

When Commissioner Cowgill some weeks ago suggested that he could use a street department attorney, his colleagues nudged and giggled. They thought it was the bunk—a thing not worthy of consideration. But Mr. Cowgill himself says it isn't the bunk, wasn't the bunk and never was intended as such. But he wants more than a lawyer. Here are the qualifications required:

The applicant must be qualified to practice in all the courts. He must have a sound legal mind altho it is not essential that he be a distinguished jurist. He must be a diplomat. He must be a salesman. He must be honest. He must have a pleasing personality.

"I need a lawyer-salesman-diplomat," he said. "I would let him do part of my talking. I'm much better at construction work than at talking. When you take into consideration the fact that we have approximately one million a year in construction work, you will see how easily it would be to keep one lawyer busy. But that's not all of it. I need a skillful type of lawyer—a man who can straighten out the many little kinks and disputes and who can put needed propositions over where the council is without authority under the mile and a half charter limitation. The city should take the lead in the process of development. There should be less red tape and petitioning and more service."

The attorney discussion came up when Mr. Cowgill was asked whether or not his curb-cut ordinance will be ready for Monday. He placed both hands on the table palm up.

"How can I tell?" he asked. "It's in the attorney's office. They have my ideas which are approved by Mr. Erickson. There's little work to do on it."

Mr. Wilke said that the ordinance probably will not be ready. The cut-curb applies to garage driveway openings.

BANKER HAD NO MONEY

Thedford Man Had Empty Grip When Arrested—Heraing Set for Next Thursday.

Van E. Peterson of the state guaranty fund commission has returned from Thedford. While there he had a talk with President Peter E. Nelson of the failed Thedford bank who has just been returned by the sheriff from New Mexico on a warrant charging the borrowing of $1,500 from the bank while serving as its officer. Other charges of violation of the banking law have been drawn by the county attorney. Nelson is under $10,000 bond.

The report that Nelson carried a considerable sum o fmoney or negotiable securities in a grip when he was arrested in New Mexico is not verified by the officers who brought him back.

"Mr. Nelson told me he did not expect to remain away," said Mr. Peterson. "He said he was merely on a trip. He made no explanation of why he was in New Mexico or where he intended going from there. I do not believe the bank will be a total loss as first reported."

Nelson is to have a hearing next Thursday before a magistrate on charges preferred against him. His deefnse has not been outlined.

COURT DECLINES TO ACT

Appeal of W. J. Taylor From Secretary of State Must Go to District Court for Action.

Dale P. Stough, attorney for W. J. Taylor of Merna has been informed by the supreme court that the court cannot assume jurisdiction in injunction cases such as be proposed to file for the purpose of prohibiting Secretary of State Pool from placing the name of Governor Bryan on the progressive party primary ballot as a candidate for governor.

Mr. Stough said he intends to file the injunction suit in the district court of Lancaster county. He will act under a statute which says the ruling of the secretary of state on protests against nominations holds good until an order of the district court or justice of the supreme court overturns it on or before the second Wednesday preceding the election. Mr. Stough hopes to get such an order from the district court before March 26. Whther the case can be prosecuted to completion before the primary election on April 8 is a matter of doubt.

RESTUDY OF DRAFT SYSTEM

Governor Bryan held a conference Saturday with Lieutenant Colonel Briggs of the war department general staff who is making a restudy of the selective service system and who presented a letter of introduction from General John J. Pershing.

Of the selective service system General Pershing says.

> The general staff of the war department has been making a restudy of the Selective Service System, by means of which our armies were created during the world war.
>
> That system has demonstrated the success of a scientific principle which doubtless will be followed in the event of future emergencies.
>
> By means of it the work of building armies which hitherto had been a military task, was with one bold stroke taken from the army and entrusted to the state governments and was thru them administered with a swiftness and success that challenged the admiration of the world.
>
> No legislation exists at this time which contemplates such a system, but, viewing the splendid results which were accomplished, I believe the General Staff is justified in its plan for National Defense to re-establish contact with the states.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

Mr and Mrs John G Rodmell wrote Lincoln friends that they were on the way to Liverpool on board the Teutonic and would probably stay for the Paris exposition.

Lester Schlegel received a telegram from his father, Alex Schlegel, that he was going to Porto Rico on a mission for the secretary of war.

The fusionists agreed on a ticket, including A. H. Weir for mayor, C. H. Imhoff for city treasurer and A. H. Gleason for city clerk.

JUSTIFYING THEIR WORK

Cost and Value of Education in Home Making Arts Studied at Association Meeting Saturday.

"The home is strategic. Homes make towns, towns make cities, and cities make a nation. He who makes the homes, makes the world."

This quotation might have been the keynote for Saturday's meeting of the home economics association of Nebraska at the chamber of commerce. The service of education in the home making arts, to the student and to the community, wa scited by more than one speaker in the discussion of the cost and value of the work, and the proposition presented that the wor kdid not need defending or if it did, it was not living up to its ideals.

A different point of view was taken however, by Miss Rose Shonka, supervisor of home economics, in the Lincoln schools, who led the discussion.

"If there was ever a time when every branch of educational work is required to justify its existence ,it is today," Miss Shonka said, "and for that reason if no other, we should look into our objectives, our curriculum, and see if the results justify the cost. Expense of education is being stressed now as never before, and it is not enough to say in general terms that our work is justified. We must be able to show how it is.

"In teaching home economics there are sociological, hygienic, esthetic and economic values, to all of which the teacher must be sensitive, just as a good housekeeper must. All must be considered in figuring our costs and ou rachievements. Properly worked out, our teaching makes for citizenship and ideals of service, as well as for efficacy in home making. It is going to be interesting to watch the course of study marked out in Denver, where an expert in curriculum has been conducting research in all department of the public schools, and in Los Angeles, where suc hresearch has been going on for two years. The individual teacher is not equipped to go into this work scientifically, so we must keep tab on what the experts are doing. Denver is spending $18,000 to find out if her school expenditures are justified."

Miss Shonka quoted comparative costs on home economics work in various Nebrascka cities. She urged that the teachers support the recently established home economics bureau at Washington and take advantage of its findings, and that they study the Teachers college bulletin on "How can the Teaching of Home Making Arts be Made More Effective?"

At the close of the morning session the teachers had luncheon in the east balcony and listened to an address by Dr. Louis F. Meier of Lincoln on the spread of dental disease and the work of home economics teachers in checking it. Dr. Meier told how defective teeth and becoming more frequent in spite of the cleanliness campaign, explaining that errors in diet were largely responsible and that the teachers could do much to spraed the doctrine of healthful eating. He urged that they keep abreast of discoveries in dietetics, and commended the statement of an earlier speaker taht the home economics teachers should cooperate with the school nurse, doctor and dentist as well as with various organizations interested in children's health and welfare and the effectiveness of the schools.

DE MOLAY DAY OF DEVOTION

Lincoln Chapter Will Observe Obligatory Day by Attending Church in Body.

Members of the Order of DeMolay thruout the country will observe March 16 at DeMolay devotional day.

DeMolay, its officers say, is rigidly undenominational. It prohibits the inculcation of any specific creed, but insists upon a profound and continuing reverence for sacred things. It insists upon frequenting the holy places and upon carrying into daily life the lessons taught by religion in its broadest aspects.

Lincoln chapter members will meet Sunday at the Scottish Rite Temple at 10:30 a. m. to attend church in a body.

TO HEAR DEMURRER OF HOWEY AND DUNN

Judge Elliott Will Rule Monday on Move to Dismiss Case Against Former Officers of City National Bank.

Whether or not L. B. Howey and Lee J. Dunn are to be prosecuted for alleged frauds in connection with their operation of the City National bank, are set forth in federal indictments returned fourteen months ago, will be decided Monday in Omaha. Judge James Elliott of Sioux Falls will hear arguments on their demurrer at that time, in addition to some matters in the Bricston mail fraud case. Should the demurrer be sustained, persons familiar with the case believe no further prosecution will ensue. Most of the offenses are charged as being committed late in 1920, and the statute of limitations prohibits the institution of prosecution after three years have elapsed since the commission of the offenses.

The demurrers are based on two contentions: that the indictment does not allege that the two men had general superintendence of the bank, and that the alleged misapplication of funds is not charged as having been without the authority of the board of directors. Attorneys for the defense say this omission makes the indictment detective. Mr. Howey and Mr. Dunn are represented by A. W. Jeffries and Halleck F. Rose of Omaha and Frank M. Hall of Lincoln. T. S. Allen resents the other three defendants, Loyd Winship, E. C. Hammond and W. S. Jones. The sixth man indicted, A. G. Hebb, died a year ago.

The indictment charges conspiracy and several overt acts. These include permitting the Nebraska Aircraft company to overdraw its account considerably, improperly loaning funds to the Nebraska Aircraft company, the Hebb Motors company, the Sheridan Park Investment company and the Standard Securities company and improper borrowing from Chicago banks to finance these deals.

guests. Along the south side of the room were seated large numbers of people who had registered as citizens of Lincoln on or before 1874. In the balcony Professor Charles Righter's university school of music orchestra played attractive selections during the meal. Prof. H. O. Ferguson's chamber of commerce glee club filed in at the conclusion of the meal and sang three stirring songs. President J. Cass Cornell introduced Charles A. Robbins, who presided over the meeting. Secretary Walter S. Whitten read a history of the chamber and its predecessors and told of the various activities now conducted and the efforts made by these organizations in the past for the upbuilding of Lincoln.

Mr. Robbins discussed the causes for the growth of prosperity in Lincoln. He said that the capitol did not make Lincoln. The university and other schools did not make Lincoln. Lincoln has been made a city because the men belonging to the original board of trade and its successors fought for fair railroad rates and secured them. He warned the people that unless they maintained the freight bureau at a high state of efficiency Lincoln will cease to grow and prosper. This he considered the central lesson of the semi-centennial exercises.

Children to Be Cared For.

NEBRASKA CITY, March 15.—Her own five minor children and the child of the deceased daughter of Mrs. Anna Karspeck will be sent to the home for dependent children at Lincoln as a result of her neglect to them. Judge Bischof made the decision in county court after hearing witnesses called from Talmage, Neb., where the children had lived with a sister of Mrs. Karspeck. Witnesses disclosed that the children were poorly clothed and that citizens of Talmage had provided provisions and fuel at several different times.

Girls Tourney Finals Saturday Night At Havelock

GIRL TEAMS STAGE FINALS SATURDAY

Schuyler Plays Sterling, Barneston Opposes Burchard and Murdock Battles Plainview for State Honors.

Schuyler and Sterling will contend Saturday for state championship honors in the Class A division of the Havelock tournament; Barnston and Burchard will play in the Class B finals and Murdock will oppose Plainview for the Class C state title.

Semi-finals were played off Friday night in the Havelock gymnasium. Sterling, champions of the 1922 all state competition, eliminated Wakefield 17 to 13, and Schuyler earned a place in the final tilt by narrowly defeating Lewiston, 14 to 13.

Another one-point margin game occurred in the Class B semi-finals when Burchard won over Lexington 15 to 14. Barneston routed Stamford by a more decisive count, 18 to 12.

Eagle left the floor defeated by a score of 12 to 8 at the hands of Plainview. Murdock left Hubbell the small end of a 15 to 7 tally, thereby meriting a chance to battle Plainview.

In the second round of Class A games, Schuyler eliminated Oxford, 13 to 11, and Wakefield defeated Sargent, 17 to 14, in two of the warmest battles of the day. A field goal in the last minute of play won for Schuyler, while an extra five minutes of play was required to decide victory for Wakefield.

Albion Goes Out.

Albion, the team that squelched the formidable Madrid outfit 36 to 12 in the initial Class A round, fell before Sterling, 1923 champions, by the decisive score of 18 to 8. Miss Steinkuler, diminutive forward for the winners, played a stellar game, while excellent guarding by Sterling worked havoc with Albion forwards. Lewiston trounced Ainsworth 38 to 16 in a contest marked by excessive goal-making. Lewiston led from the outset, the half ending 20 to 9 against Ainsworth.

Burchard and Walton played the only tight game in Class B second round, Walton failing to overcome a two point lead held by Burchard in the final quarter, 9 to 11. The fray was nip and tuck thruout, Burchard leading at the half 5 to 4.

Havelock and Bethany Out.

Both Havelock and Bethany met their fates in the second round. Havelock gave Stamford a strong run for honors, but lost on a two point margin, 21 to 19. Stamford led at the half by one point, 8 to 7, and was forced to extend in order to retain the lead. Bethany fell an easy victim to Lexington, 26 to 9. The fourth Class B contest was an easy win for Barneston over Adams, 21 to 10. Eight field goals by Miss Moran of Barneston did much to swamp the opposition.

Eagle trounced Papillion 15 to 4, only to suffer defeat in the Class C semi-finals at the hands of Plainview. Greenwood lost to Hubbell, 20 to 15, who in turn lost to Murdock 15 to 7 in the semi-finals. Murdock had defeated Verdon 14 to 10 in the second round. Plainview, victors over Eagle in the semi-finals, defeated Chambers 19 to 14 in the second round.

A meeting of coaches and school officials of those schools entered in the Havelock tournament will be held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning at Havelock. Some discussion of the action taken Thursday by the state high school athletic association to disbar schools who enter girls teams in any tournament, is expected.

K. C. A. C. and Butler Battle for Honors

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 15.—Butler college and the Kansas City athletic club will battle here tonight for the national basketball championship. They earned the right to enter the finals last night when Butler defeated Hillyards of St. Joseph, Mo., 35 to 19, and K. C. A. C. beat Lombard college 38 to 21. Lombard and Hillyards will meet at 8:30 p. m. to determine third and fourth place while the finals will be played at 9:30 p. m.

Lakeland, Fla.—Indian regulars won 7 to [illegible] the rookies first practice game yesterday. Uhle, Edwards, Metcalf, [illegible] Shaute showed well in the box.

LINCOLN SWIMMERS DEFEAT TECH TEAM

Capture First Places in Six of Eight Events at High School Pool—State Champions Place High.

Lincoln walked away from Omaha Tech, taking first in six out of eight events in the inter-city swimming meet held at the Lincoln high school pool Friday night. The natatorium was crowded with rooters for the capital city mermen. The final score stood Lincoln 42, Tech 26.

"Bud" McBride copped two first for Lincoln, taking both the 100-yard free style and 40-yard free style.

Johnson of Lincoln, state champion distance plunger, and Foster of Tech, state champion fancy diver, both met the expectations of the crowd by placing first in their respective events.

Lincoln copped first in every event but the fancy diving and 100-yard breast stroke. The metropolis team took four second and four third places while the Red and Black outfit romped away with five firsts, three seconds, and three third places. The summary:

160-yard relay won by Lincoln (McBride, Hickman, Waldo, Spangler), time 1 minute, 32 3-5 seconds

100-yard breast stroke won by Garvey, Tech; Lang, Tech, second, Hickman, Lincoln, third. Time: 1 minute, 28 1-5 seconds.

Plunge for distance won by Johnson, Lincoln; Lucas, Tech, second, Bavis, Lincoln, third. Distance, 53 feet in 32 3-5 seconds.

40-yard free style, won by McBride, Lincoln; Waldo, Lincoln, second; Nelson, Tech, third. Time: 22 1-5 seconds.

100-yard back stroke, won by F. Ross, Lincoln; R. Ross, Lincoln, second, Thompson, Tech, third. Time: 1 minute, 23 1-5 seconds

220-yard free style, won by Waldo, Lincoln; Foster, Tech, second; Lucas, Tech, third. Time: 3 minutes, 2 4-5 seconds.

100-yard free style, won by McBride, Lincoln; Dempsey, Tech, second, Hickman, Lincoln, third. Time: 1 minute, 9 3-5 seconds.

"DIAMOND DUST FROM TRAINING CAMPS"

Winter Haven, Fla. — Chicago White Sox were held to a short practice tilt of six innings in which the regulars handed the rookies a five to nothing defeat by a touch of winter.

Sarasota, Fla.—Four young unsigned athletes were the first of the rookies to get tickets out of the Giant training camp. They were Bernie Wefers, star New York A. C. sprinter; Aurisey, Thompson and McAuliffe.

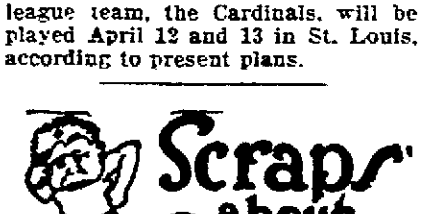
Clearwater, Fla. — Homers by Judge, McGrew, Rice and Goslin helped the Washington Senators give the Brooklyn Robins a 9 to 4 beating. Zach Wheat hit one homer for Robins.

Augusta, Ga.—Manager Ty Cobb is getting peeved over weather conditions that are keeping his Tigers idle. The rain routine was broken by snow and a cold wave yesterday.

Orlando, Fla.—Jack Hendricks, former Indianapolis club manager, today gathered the Reds about him and told them of his elevation to the position of manager of the Reds. He will continue Pat Moran's policies and asked for cooperation afforded the former manager of the team. Hendricks will have complete charge of the team. His salary was doubled.

Bradentown, Fla.—Arthur Delaney and Herman Bell, rookie pitchers performed well for the St. Louis team yesterday, and the Cardinals beat the Milwaukee Brewers 5 to 3. The Cards are playing the Giants at Sarasota today.

Mobile, Ala.—The Browns' spring series against the St. Louis National league team, the Cardinals, will be played April 12 and 13 in St. Louis, according to present plans.



OMAHA, March 15.—A preliminary bout between Jock Malone, St. Paul middleweight and Morrie Schlaifer, Omaha welter, to see who is to have the honor of fighting the main event of the Elks' fight card here St. Patrick's night, is within the range of possibility.

Neither Malone nor the North Omaha "fighting fool" will consent to appear as a semi-windupist on the card.

Malone, who is scheduled to fight Georgie West, English slugger, arrived today and declared emphatically he would not appear unless his name is featured on the top row of the bright lights

Schlaifer, who meets Harlem Jimmy Kelly, insists that his record and popularity here entitles him to the spotlight. Schlaifer said however he is willing to fight for the honor and challenged Malone to an elimination contest.

Schlaifer and Malone, altho matched several times, have never met. Schlaifer says the St. Paul boy has sidestepped him

Fight fans who love to see a real mill have suggested to Matchmaker Dick Grotte that the only way out of the embarrassing situation is to have Malone fight Schlaifer in the main event and that West and Kelly be put on in the semi-windup.

MAKING OF A GOLF CHAMPION

(Copyright, 1924, United States, Canada and Great Britain by North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.)

BY WALTER HAGEN

Former American, British and French Open champion, twice American title holder, and present holder of the North and South open and the Florida open and Texas open.

CHAPTER VI.
How Many in One?

With the Pan-American and the national open championship titles in my possession I was all set for the campaign of 1915. I guess I was a little cocky over my success for I had a tumble coming to me. The national open that year was scheduled for Baltusrol, a New Jersey course that has seen many championship matches, and it was up to me to defend my title.

You must remember that I was only twenty-two years of age at that time and the idea of possible defeat had never entered my head. I suppose I took it for granted that as long as I had won the open once I could repeat the performance as many times as necessary—an illusion long since exploded. If all championships were like the Pan-American it would be different. As far as I know I still hold that title and probably always will, as it will never be played for again.

Early that spring I came down to New York to play in a small event at Greenwich in which four amateurs and four pros took part. There were just two foursomes but quite a large gallery was on hand to witness the performance.

It was a close contest all around and up to the thirteenth hole looked like anybody's match. On that hole, however, I managed to pull off one of those freak stunts that happen about once in a season. The hole measured 450 yards and my drive was long and straight and covered approximately 250 yards. The hole was slightly concealed from view by the undulations of the fairway. I took out my cleek and hit the shot straight for the pin. It looked pretty good but I must confess I was dumbfounded at what happened.

No sooner was my stroke completed than a fellow in the gallery near the green began jumping up and down and shouting something that I couldn't make out. I thought at first that he was trying to tell me I had gone on over the green or that the ball had stopped dead to the hole. On the contrary I found that he was trying to inform me that I had holed out in two on a par four hole!

Herd has Seventeen Aces.

Speaking of freak strokes, holding out a long midiron shot is as close as I ever came to making a hole in one. I have done this three or four times but the long looked-for ace is yet to come. Most good players have made them. Sandy Herd has a collection of seventeen. Alex Smith has eleven or twelve. Mike Brady has almost as many, but I have never even started on my collection. They say that a hole is one is due once in every twenty thousand shots, but if this is the case, I must be long overdue. I have played a great deal of golf, in this country and abroad, but the ace is still in the future. Perhaps I will average up before I finish with the game.

Soon after my freak, the clan began gathering for the open at Baltusrol and I was among them. There was a good field of players with a few entries from the other side of the Atlantic. Among the latter was little Benny Sayers, who added considerable interest to the tournament. Benny is a well-known character in Scotland; he is one of the smallest pros in the game but an excellent shot maker. It was Benny who invented the famous dreadnought driver and later on gave us the ribbed mashie.

Before the tournament started someone remarked that if I won again it would be a fine achievement as it was a most difficult thing to do. Johnnie McDermott had accomplished a double victory in 1911 and 1912 but the field was not so good then. Neither was it so formidable a few years earlier when Willie Anderson, a grand little golfer of his day, won three big open titles in a row. Willie won four championships in his time but his career was cut short by an untimely death.

I found that Gil Nicholls, who was just then at the top of his game, was the favorite to win and I made up my mind to watch him closely; in fact I played with Gil on several occasions prior to the start of the match and his work was uncanny. He did not seem human, for round after round he was close to seventy. When the qualifying round started he was still as steady as a clock and led his half of the field. And then the very thing happened to him which had thrown me off my pace just before the Pan-American championship. Gil's long streak of perfect golf suddenly left him. I had come on to my game at the psychological moment, while Gil found his slipping away just as quickly and mysteriously. By the time the championship proper got under way he was flopping them all over the lot. Nothing broke right for him and he finished the morning round with a score close to eighty.

Amateurs Take Lead.

I will not go into detail concerning the outcome of the tournament, except to say that it proved a bitter disappointment for me. I did my best but it was not in the cards that I should win. It was the amateurs who had cause for rejoicing that year as Jerry Travers came to the front and won the title. Jerry had always been a star in match play but no one thought he was equal to winning an open championship. He played brilliantly and his finish on the last nine holes was remarkable work for he had to come in in figures equal to par to head off Tommy McNamara by a single stroke.

Jerry Travers, an amateur who came to the front on the last nine holes of the National Open in 1915 winning from Tommy McNamara by a stroke.

Following that tournament professional golf took a walloping set-back. Ouimet, an amateur, won the open in 1913; Travers in 1915, and Evans the next year. These three were heralded as the triumvirate of American golf and they well deserved all the praise they received.

This tournament incidentally saw the last appearance of Johnnie McDermott. He came most unexpectedly, but his white skin showed that he had little or no practice, altho he sprang a surprise in the first round by playing around in seventy and leading the field. Lack of condition told in the end however, as he failed to maintain the pace. Johnnie never took part in another big open after this. Not long ago I had a few holes with him in Philadelphia and was astonished to see how well he could hit the ball. He plays occasionally at the sanitorium but is unfit for further tournament play.

The loss of that tournament was a terrific disappointment for me, but it taught me still another lesson—that it is one thing to make shots and another thing to win championships, that there is such a thing as systematic golf play.

Tomorrow: The Strategy of Success.

Winnipeg, Man.—Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul light-heavyweight knocked out Jack Moore of New York after one minute and thirty-five seconds of the second round of their scheduled ten round fight here last night. A slashing right to the jaw after Moore had hit the canvas three times was finishing blow of a decidedly one-sided bout.

Catalina Island, Cal.—The Los Angeles coast leaguers hit the Chicago Cubs for a 6 to 2 win here. The majors lacked pitching and hitting strength.

New Orleans—Bob Shawkey, one of the Yankee star pitchers, signed a new contract. Bob Meusel, who is expected to arrive today, is the only unsigned athlete on the team. Babe Ruth has been laid up two days with indigestion.

BERLENBACH TAKES COUNT IN FOURTH

Delaney Knocks Out New York Middleweight Boxer With Rain of Blows—Anybody's Fight Till Third.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Paul Berlenbach, the swat king of the bush league ring, took his first look at big league pitching in Madison Square Garden last night and he was fanned out by Jack Delaney, the tall sharp shooter of Bridgeport.

All the inexperienced Berlenbach knew how to do was to stand up at the plate and swing and miss and he lasted for three and a half rounds when he was beaten to the floor by an opponent who knew how and when to hit.

Berlenbach was floored three times when referee Jack O'Sullivan waved Delaney to his corner and called Berlenbach's seconds into the ring to get him.

Smart generalship, good boxing, and clean sharp punching won the fight for Delaney. It was a clever piece and a brave piece of daring that turned the first break and the fight for Delaney.

Through the first two rounds Delaney took the big chance of allowing Berlenbach to swarm all over him. He was blocking some of the terrible short punches to the body, but others were landing and they hurt him.

Before the gong brought the fighters out for the third round, Berlenbach could hardly wait to get started. When the bell sounded he rushed across the ring to finish his man. Delaney sidestepped him and let fly with everything he had behind a straight right. It landed flush to the jaw and Berlenbach almost went down. That one punch won the fight. Berlenbach was groggy thru the third round and into the fourth until he was stopped.

Illinois Slated To Cop Big Ten Meet

CHICAGO, March 15.—Track and field stars of the Big Ten schools, many of them candidates for berths on the United States Olympic team, waited the crack of the gun here today in the fourteenth annual indoor track and field meet of the western conference.

Trials in the dash, hurdles, quarter and half mile were run off in Pattan gymnasium last night. Most stars met the expectations of coaches and dopesters in the preliminaries.

Fessenden and Carter of Illinois won their heats in the quarter mile, while Brookins of Iowa was shut out in the preliminary heat of the fifty-yard dash DeHart Hubbard, dusky Michigan star, won his heat in the dash and also his trial in the sixty-yard high hurdles.

While Illinois is given the edge, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin are conceded to be strong contenders for honors.

Six teams will start in the one-mile relay. Iowa which came within a fraction of a second of the world's record of 3:16 4-10 at the Drake relays last April drew the pole. Ohio State, Illinois, Northwestern, Wisconsin and Michigan follow in order from Iowa.

A part of the receipts of tonight's gate will be turned over to the general Olympic fund.

Blouin Off Form In Ten Pin Meet

CHICAGO, March 15.—Bowling enthusiasts again were disappointed here last night when Jimmy Blouin, former champion, failed to show the form which has put him in the lead in other A. B. C. mets. In the singles and doubles he was way off form and did not place in the prize money.

Another champion team failed to bowl more than a mediocre score. The Ziegler Chocolates five of Milwaukee on which four members of 1923 team which established the international record of 3,139 and won the championship bowled only 2,814.

Joe Summammatter, Rochester, furnished the only sensation of the evening when he rolled 299, one pin shy of a perfect score with the Vaccaro Shoe team on the last shift of the night. His team rolled high on the last squad of the evening with a 2,896, but failed to displace any of the leaders.

The Madison Packing five, Madison, Wis., had the edge on the first squad with a 2,838 total. The Monana's of St. Paul followed the Ziegler Chocolates on this squad with a score of 2,795.

Smorowski and J. Ryan, Chicago, tore off a 1,259 for eighth place in the doubles and Smorowski made 695 for seventh place in the singles.

"DIGGING"
WATCH THAT RIGHT SHOULDER
DUCKING IT TOO SUDDENLY CAUSES "DIGGING." THROW WEIGHT SLIGHTLY ON LEFT FOOT AND KEEP RIGHT SHOULDER UP MORE.

What are the causes of "digging?"

Answered by

BOB MACDONALD.

Winner of the Metropolitan Open championship, 1921 and 1923. One of the longest drivers in the game tho using only a 12 1-2 ounce driver.

The chief cause of "digging" the club into the ground behind the ball is the dropping of the right shoulder too much and too suddenly. If the weight is slightly thrown on the left foot and the right shoulder is kept up more, the player should find that the "digging" will take care of itself and a better shot will result. Over-anxiety to hit the ball is another cause of digging which the player can overcome thru playing oftener.

Mermen Shatter Conference Marks

CHICAGO, March 15.—Winning with ease the swimming championship of the big ten conference, Northwestern university nataros sought a national title. The Purple squad will go east to engage in dual meets with Yale and the Navy teams.

Led by Dick Howell and Ralph Breyer, record smashing sprinters, Northwestern won the big ten title with a total of 32 points against 12 for Minnesota, the closest contender.

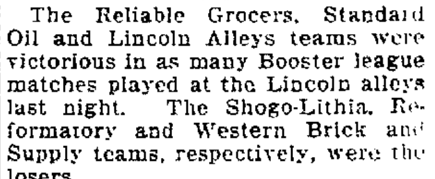
Howell bettered conference records in the 100 yard and 220 yard swims, while Breyer beat his own conference record in the 440.

The scores: Northwestern, 32; Minnesota, 12; Michigan, 11; Iowa, 11; Wisconsin, 10; Chicago, 9, Indiana, 9, and Illinois, 5.



The Reliable Grocers, Standard Oil and Lincoln Alleys teams were victorious in as many Booster league matches played at the Lincoln alleys last night. The Shogo-Lithia, Reformatory and Western Brick and Supply teams, respectively, were the losers.

Graebing of the Western Brick and Graebing of the West Brick and Supply five was high point man for the evening, tallying 586 points.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, March 15.—Wheat was strong in today's trading on the local board. Corn and oats ruled irregular.

Short covering caused wheat to rally following several dips and the close was fractionally higher. Late firmness in Liverpool also helped local sentiment.

Further liquidation carried May corn to the lowest price in several weeks.

Buying on the dip by shorts, however, stimulated buying sentiment and a slight recovery was scored near the close. July was up ¼c, due to unfavorable crop news, and September remained dormant with little interest being displayed in this delivery.

May oats firmed up with an improvement in cash demand. July slumped on account of favorable crop news. September closed unchanged.

Provisions were strong and higher with hogs and reports of a decrease in packers' supplies.

Chicago Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, March 15.—The rally in wheat created a feeling that heavy liquidation is over. It is figured, however, that we are around 10c over Canadian wheat when exchange is figured.

One large commission house believes underlying conditions surrounding the wheat market that were responsible for the break are still apparent and that a secondary break will carry values sharply lower.

It was said that a leading stock and cotton trader, who has been credited with being long on wheat and corn for some time, is all out of the market and has reduced his holdings of corn.

The poor cash demand in the face of reduced receipts keeps a number of the most active traders on the selling side of corn.

Some of the bulls still remain confident of their position, however. The oats market has been well liquidated, as some traders see it.

Should the Dawes commission recommend a large load to Germany it is believed the rye market would be benefited.

Export demand: Sales of wheat in all positions estimated at 2,000,000 bushels, practically all Manitobas (Canadian). France and Norway took 400,000 bushels of rye.—Lamson.

Grain Market Opinions.

Bartlet-Frazier: The markets should do better after the recent cleaning out.

Harris, Winthrop & Co.: There is no great improvement in the domestic demand for wheat. Conservative buying of corn on breaks is suggested.

Logan & Bryan: Wheat is still well above an export basis. The cash situation and the run of corn will govern that market.

Hulburd, Warren & Chandler: Prominent elevator concerns have been good buyers of wheat on the breaks. Purchases of May corn around present levels are little risk.

J. M. Simpson: Export business in wheat is helping to stabilize the market. It looks as if corn is in shape to react when shorts start to cover.—Lamson.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO, March 15.—Many prominent traders believe liquidation in wheat will not develop depressing proportions again unless prices again drop back to $1.05 or under for May. Confidence in the market, however, has not been restored, and it is expected free selling will develop on hard spots. It is also said that eastern bankers who have money out on wheat loans are beginning to show signs of apprehension.

A prominent member of a commission house said that a great deal of liquidation is due in corn and he looks for a material decline in prices before there is any material advance.

May oats act decidedly tight. The chief outstanding long interest in that delivery is believed to be held by a prominent local operator who intends to stand on his line and accept delivery.—Lamson.

Foreign Cables.

LIVERPOOL, March 15.—Wheat opened today, ⅛@¼c up; wheat closed today, ⅛@⅜c up.

BUENOS AIRES, March 15.—Wheat closed here last night, 1c lower. Corn closed here last night, 2@2¼c lower.—Lamson.

Herald-Examiner Report.

CHICAGO, March 15.—The feature of the corn trade yesterday was the fact that the well known aggressive support has abandoned the pit. Early weather forecast indicates rain or snow in most sections.—Lamson.

Beef steers and yearlings of value to sell at $9.50 and above, around steady; other killing steers 15@25c lower, with extreme on plain yearlings as much as 50c off; week's top long yearlings $10.75; handyweights $10.60; heavy beef $10.20; bulk fed steers $7.75@9.50, other grades and fat she stock 15@25c lower; in-between grades and canners and cutters steady; plain quality yearling heifers 35@50c lower, spots lower, bulls weak; vealers steady, 50c lower, closing top veals $9, better grades stockers and feeders strong, others steady; week's top fleshy feeders $8.50, bulk all classes $6.25@7.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 3,000; market, 5@10c higher to shippers; top $7.20; 180 to 230 pound averages $7.05@7.20; mixed grades to packers, fully steady; packing sows, mostly $6.35.

Sheep—Receipts, 1,000; today's receipts confined to local feed lots; lambs steady to 15c higher, top $15.85, bulk $15.00@15.35; sheep strong, top ewes $10.

Chicago Livestock.

CHICAGO, March 15.—Hogs—Receipts, 8,000; market, 5@10c up; top, $7.45; bulk, $7.10@7.35; heavyweight, $7.30@7.45; medium, $7.25@7.40; lightweight, $6.90@7.40; light lights, $6.00@7.30; heavy packing sows, smooth, $6.50@6.70; packing sows, rough, $6.25@6.50; killing pigs, $4.25@6.50.

Cattle—Receipts, 1,000. Market compared with last week: Beef steers steady, 25c off, in-between grades showing most decline; extreme top matured steers, $12; best long yearlings, $11.75; liberal proportion of fat steer run low grade kind; stockers and feeders weak, 25c off; she stock steady, 25c up; bulls, 10@15c up; vealers, very uneven, desirable handyweights to shippers, unevenly higher, others 50@75c off. Week's prices: Beef steers, $8.00@10.00; stockers and feeders, $6.00@7.75; fat she stock, $5.25@7.25; canners and cutters, $2.85@3.75; veal calves, $9.00@10.50.

Sheep—Receipts, 6,000, mostly direct; two doubles fat shorn lambs $9.25, strong. Market for week: 2,300 direct; 178 cars feed lot. Compared with last week: Fat wooled lambs, 50c off; shorn lambs, fully steady; yearling wethers, 25@50c off; fat sheep mostly 50c up, spots more; shorn lambs, 25@35c up; top fat lambs for the week, $15.65; best shearing lambs, $14; top shearing lambs $15.85. Week's bulk prices: Fat lambs, $15.50@16.50; yearling wethers, $13.00@13.75; aged wethers, $9.50@11.25; fat ewes, $9.50@10.50; feeding lambs, $14.75@15.25; clipped lambs, $12.50@13.75.

Omaha Livestock.

OMAHA, March 15.—Cattle—Receipts, 300 head. Today's market nominally steady. The run of cattle this week has been the largest in some time, nearly 35,600 head, and the trend of steer prices has been generally lower. A few of the best heavy steers have held steady, but others are generally 15@25c lower, and plainer grades as well as most yearlings are from 25@50c below the high time this week. She stock has held up fairly well, good grades being steady and medium not over 15@25c lower. Stockers and feeders are unchanged.

Hogs—Receipts, 11,000. Higher trends elsewhere, coupled with only a fair supply, gave the local trade a strong, active tone this morning. Shippers were out in good season and before much time had passed movement was under way at prices mostly 5@10c higher than Friday. The packer market was also an active one and prices were mostly 5@10c higher than yesterday.

Altho prices showed a good tone the first part of the week, mid-week found values dropping sharply, and the close finds the market 10@20c lower than last Saturday.

Sales of hogs today included:

No.	Av.	Price.	No.	Av.	Price.
50	261	$6.90	76	239	$6.95
57	303	6.95	67	254	7.00
84	221	7.00	65	257	7.05
69	260	7.10	67	325	7.10

Sheep—Receipts, 500. The few lambs at hand were sold direct today and the market was nominal. While fat lamb prices showed a strong attitude this week, advances were rather limited, and the market at the close looked strong to around 10c higher than last Saturday. Best lambs touched $16 this week. Fluctuations in the shearer trade were small throut and the market not much changed from a week ago. Aged sheep show an upturn of 25@35c for the week.

OMAHA, March 15.—Cattle—Receipts, 300; market, nominally steady; yearlings, $6.75@10.25; steers, $7.50@11.10; cows and heifers, $2.50@8.25; stockers and feeders, $4.00@8.85; calves, $4.00@10.50; bulls and stags, $4.00@6.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 11,000; market, 5@10c up; bulk, $6.80@7.10; top, $7.10.

Sheep—Receipts, 500; market, steady; yearlings, $9.00@12.50; wethers, $7.75@10.50; lambs, $13.75@15.85; ewes, $6.25@10.35.

Foreign Exchange.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Foreign exchange closed irregular. Sterling demand, $4.28⅝; francs, .0475½; lire, .0427½; Belgian francs, .0383½; marks, 4½ trillions to the dollar.

New York Liberty Bonds.

NEW YORK, March 15.—U. S. liberty bonds were quoted here today as follows: 3½'s, $98 29-32d; first 4¼'s, $99 6-32d; second 4¼'s, $99 3-32d; third 4¼'s, $99 31-32d; fourth 4¼'s, $99 7-32d; new 4¾'s, $100 3-32d.

Coming Events in Stocks.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Certain of the rails in line for future dividend action, such as Wabash preferred "A" and St. Louis & San Francisco, preferred, warrant holding under present market conditions.—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Selling of the industrials was checked in the early part of the final hour by the conspicuous strength of a number of railroad stocks, including Norfolk & Western, which was active at the best levels of the year, and Chesapeake & Ohio, which went into a new high ground on the present recovery at 75⅝.

Steadiness in the steel stocks was another stabilizing factor.

The whole group was sustained by indications of increasing orders. Steel corporation having booked contracts so far this month in excess of the February average of 51,000 tons per day.

The market closed lower.

GOVERNMENT DELAY BURSTED A BUBBLE

after the government had agreed to begin delivery. In the meanwhile their customers made life miserable for them, and when they finally made demand for the return of their deposits the company had to return all of the money. The sales at that time were of 125 airplanes and if the company had been able to get the planes it would have had no financial troubles at all.

The company, however, was making its payments to the government and it kept on making them until it paid to it $216,000. Then its financial resources were exhausted and it could pay no more. The government then stopped sending planes, and the remainder of the contract was never carried out. It might be stated here that these planes were shipped in a knocked-down condition. Many of the boxes bore the original labels from the firms from whom the parts had been purchased by the government. Engines that had cost as high as $8,000 were listed as a small figure, and other parts in proportion. The total obligation of the company, under its contract with the government, was in the neighborhood of $600,000, and this was for planes that cost the government from five to seven times that total.

Then Came the Blowup.

The financial corner into which the situation had driven the company left it helpless before the storm that then began to blow. The eastern holders of the paper—this was in 1920—began to demand payment. Then it was that the directors of the City National bank found out for the first time that the credit of the institution had been put back of the paper. They had never been informed of it and were assured by Howey and Dunn that it was their personal transaction.

The directors, however went down into their own pockets and paid off the paper, so that it did not constitute any liability of the bank and took it over themselves. This has turned out to be an absolute loss to them, not a dollar of it being regarded as worth anything. The total was close to $300,000. This was made up of the $50,000 expense money scattered at Washington by Wild and Means, the $216,000 paid to the government, and the value of $28,500 of liberty bonds belonging to the bank that had been put up with the government as a guarantee that the corporation would carry out its contract.

Government Won't Give Them Up.

Elmer B. Stephenson, now president of the City National and one of the directors who made the bank whole on the transaction so that it lost nothing, has been to Washington several times to secure the release of the bonds. He was very cordially received by Secretary Weeks, who readily admits that the government having caused the debacle, ought morally to return the bonds, but that the law does not permit this to be done. So there they stay.

The government officials admit the delay, but they say that Mr. Winship, in writing, waived any reparation from the government for the delay in making shipments, and that this forgiveness makes it impossible to return the bonds.

The government threatened later to sue the corporation on the uncompleted contract, but never did so. In fact, the corporation lost its property on foreclosure. It was purchased by Mr. Stephenson as trustee for the creditors and he sold what was left of the planes to a local dealer. The stuff had been stored at big expense and the losses listed above by no means represent the total of the whole deal.

Howey and Dunn, to whom Winship and Hebb first confided their million dollar dream, lost heavily in the transaction, and shortly afterwards lost also their positions as executive officers of the bank and have had no connection with it for more than four years. Hebb is dead. The Aircraft corporation was a bankrupt paying not a cent on its liabilities

BRING GOSPEL OF DYNAMIC EDUCATION

F. A. Good Tells Manual Training Teachers at Luncheon at Grand Hotel That They Are Educational Ministers.

A group of state teachers of manual training, with their ladies, met at luncheon Saturday at the Grand hotel. An incident of the banquet was an address by F. A. Good, author of the series of articles which have been appearing in issues of the Sunday State Journal under the caption "Hand and Brain." Mr. Good felicitated them as a new factor in education that has large latent and practical possibilities.

Continuing he said: "You are educational ministers and are bringing to our schools the gospel of a dynamic education. The fundamentalist in educational matters as in matters religious is now sitting over a bit to make room for the more practical modernist who would co-ordinate the youths' activities and develop in them both 'Hand and Brain.'

"Most of the young men (and women, too)," Mr. Good said, "will remain on, or go back to the farm. We may question that a knowledge of Latin or French or logarithms may make them better farmers, but we are not skeptical if happily they may be able to file a saw, cut a rafter, or do a neat job of concrete work.

"The most serious thing to be said of your activities are that your efforts are not ambitious enough. That you teach too much the cabinet art while the necessities of environment would seem to indicate that simple carpentry and mechanics would more wholesomely equip a boy for either farm or town life.

"Remember this: You are as yet something new; an innovation in school or community work. Naturally you are given a bit of isolation. Perhaps a carpenter has designated you as a 'young squirt.' The lumberman may have had a call from one of your scholars for a piece of 3-4 inch board 10 feet long and 9 inches wide: then he told the harness man about it and he told the blacksmith also: 'so you're news' in the community. You have publicity, now make it work for you. Get acquainted with those business men, let them—make them help you. The carpenter who shows your boys how to make a window frame; the hardware man who explains—nails; or the lumberman who will talk 'stock sizes' to your class are friends from then on; but use them often, so their friendship may never grow old.

"Then keep yourself competent. Your vacations may be profitably employed on a job of carpentry, or you may take university work to make yourself more competent. Have no fear that you are making 'water haul' of 'drilling in a dry hole' for you are, not only establishing yourself as an instructor, but you are learning a trade as well, and Benjamin Franklin has said: 'He who hath a trade, hath an estate.'"

MAN BANISHED FROM STATE

John Milliken of St. Louis Released From Jail on Condition He Never Returns.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 15.—John T. Milliken jr., twenty-five, son of the late millionaire chemical manufacturer, today was banished forever from the state of Missouri.

Milliken was sentenced to three months in jail at Clayton, seat of St. Louis county, in connection with a shooting a year ago, but released on condition he "never return to Missouri."

Milliken's escapades have kept him in hot water in St. Louis county since he was in his teens. He was indicted for felonious wounding and carrying concealed weapons.

He pleaded guilty to carrying weapons and to a charge of assault in connection with the shooting of Elbert Demain, twenty-six, at a roadhouse in St. Louis county in January, 1923, and the court accepted the pleas.

"We took it as our best opportunity of getting rid of Milliken," said Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Stanton. "We are sending him out of Missouri for good. The sentence is hanging over his head, and if he ever comes back, he'll certainly serve those ninety days."

CAN YOUR TAXES BE CUT

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR.

CHAPTER XXX.

The Public Debt Charges.

Out of every dollar which was raised by Alexander Hamilton to carry on the federal government in 1790, 55 cents went to pay interest on the public debt. The government spent $4,269,000 for all purposes in that year. Interest took 2,349,000. For the next twenty years the public debt charges took three to four millions a year. Then bump number one appeared. A war.

The war of 1812 caused public debt charges to increase for fifteen years to about five millions of dollars annually. Then for ten years a gradual reduction took place, for peace was abroad in the land. Peace is the greatest healer of financial sickness known to mankind. By 1836, the public debt had been entirely paid off. The item of interest for the next ten years was a mere trifle. But it was too good to last.

So the government of the United States deliberately ran into bump number two. The Mexican war.

From 1846 to 1860, the public debt charges again reached from three to four millions of dollars annually. And by that time it was not difficult to meet. The government had again control of the situation. Then bump number three appeared. It was terrible one. Another war.

The civil war nearly wrecked the American nation financially—both in the north and in the south. Interest charges arose from $4,000,000 in 1861 to $133,000,000 in 1866. The next fifteen years were heart-breaking ones. The debt charges averaged well over $100,000,000 annually. But the great financial healer, peace, was again in the land. Interest charges decreased as payments were made on the principal. The Spanish-American war added but little to the burden, because the great part of the war expenses were paid out of current taxes.

That was the right policy in 1898. It was the one policy to have pursued in 1917. But it was not followed. Bump number four appeared. Another war.

The Race's Greatest Debauch.

The great war was the greatest financial debauch in all the history of mankind. We spent for purely war purposes a total of $30,787,000,000 and we raised in war taxes a total of $6,900,000,000. For every dollar which we spent for war, we raised 22.4 cents in taxes. The balance—77.8 cents—we got by selling government credit and by debauching our money. We conscripted men, but we did not conscript wealth. That was our biggest mistake.

Jean de Bloch, a Polish banker, published a very great treatise on "The Future of War." In the six volumes of this monumental work, the great banker established the proposition that from a purely economic viewpoint a modern war was nothing less than international suicide. And unless civilization could get rid of it, war would get rid of civilization. Bloch was the first business statesman to understand just what war did to the modern industrial plant.

He saw clearly that unless all the war expenses are paid for out of current taxation, future generations will pay the cost by their savings and hardships. Yes, and at a lower standard of living. The whole world is experiencing just that thing today. And the people of the United States are not outside of this iron law of war.

It is very important at this point that we should not confuse real wealth with the evidences and symbols of wealth. Real wealth consists of goods and services, while evidences of wealth consists of money and credit.

In real wealth, therefore, the United States paid its entire cost of the war while it was being fought. There was no escape from it. Every saddle, every gun, every uniform, every ton of shell, every piece of beefsteak, every man-hour spent in military service, was taken from the current store of wealth at the time.

Real Incomes Reduced.

Now if these materials and energies given to war activity did not arise from increased productive efficiency, which would have been impossible under peace conditions, this draft on our real wealth made poorer by just that much the current real incomes of our population. How then did we pay for the war? We paid for it in housing shortage, in food and clothing and scarcities—in a word, in a reduced purchasing power of the average individual. So the real cost of the war was met only by a reduction in consumption.

Every person who has been thru the experiences of the last war should know and understand that such deprivations and hardships would not have been an iota enlarged if the entire money cost of the war had been raised by taxation and not a cent had been raised by borrowings.

So if the entire cost of the last war for the United States had been paid out of the current taxation, instead of only 31 per cent as raised, the immediate cost to the people in real wealth would have been no greater and there would have been no federal war debt of twenty-five billions of dollars to pay off after the war was over.

I want to make this point especially clear. The government of the United States, by raising 69 per cent of the money necessary for war by governmental borrowings only added to the future tax burdens without reducing the immediate real cost.

But you ask how is such a thing possible? If the government had doubled his taxes, would Mr. Citizen not have less money with which to buy current necessities, and so less purchasing power? Such a question overlooks the change in the value of money which accompanied, and must always accompany, large scale government borrowings. It is true that the individual taxpayers had to give over to the government fewer dollars than if the war had been entirely financed by taxation. But the dollars which he had left could buy less because of the higher prices accompanying the inflation of credit and currency, which in turn was caused directly by government borrowings.

War Shrank Wealth Symbols.

So the last war from the standpoint of all government finances was a tragedy, not only because of the real wealth destroyed, but because it corrupted and demoralized the symbols or evidences of wealth—the currency and credit of the nation. Our country was no exception.

When the ratio of the volume of credit and currency increases faster than the ration of the volume of goods produced, prices rise, money falls in value and inflation sets in. That is what happened thruout the world in the last war period. It happened also in the United States. Result—money, the medium of exchange shrunk in value. It just withered up so that $100 in 1913 became worth only $48 in purchasing value in 1919. Inflation is grand larceny by the government. It robs one class of people and hands the loot over to another class. It always works the same way. The greater part of the world's troubles today are directly due to the evils of inflation. We borrowed 77.6 per cent of our war expenses. We too committed the crime of inflation.

Interest on the public debt grew from $24,742,000 in the fiscal year 1918 to $1,055,088,000 in the fiscal year 1923. For every dollar spent by United States for interest in 1918, $42 was needed in 1923.

Our public debt charges in 1923 were more than twice the cost of the whole federal governmetn in 1900. It is more than one and one-half times the total cost of the entire government as late as the fiscal year 1917.

$3,000,000 a Day Interest.

Since the beginning of the fiscal year 1920, the people of the United States have had to pay out approximately $3,000,000 a day for public debt charges. This is more by approximately $337,000,000 than the total spent on the army and navy together for 1923. Yet it is really a war cost—one of the tangible things we got out of the war.

On June 30, 1916, our interest-bearing debt was $971,562,000. On June 30, 1923, it had reached $22,007,000,000. The interest charges had grown during the same period from $23,084,000 to $1,055,000,000

For every dollar spent by the federal government in the fiscal year 1923, this item of interest alone took 25.5 cents. But this is not the whole story. Another $402,850,000 must be added to the public debt charges as payment on principal. Together (for interest and principal) over 41 cents out of every dollar which the government of the United States spent went for this item of debt charges. It is easily the largest single item in the cost of the federal government.

Tomorrow: Can The Debt Charges Be Cut?

TO CAMP STRADER IN JUNE

Y. M. C. A. Announces Tentative Camp Schedule Beginning June 11, Ending September 1.

The committee in charge of the Lincoln Y. M. C. A. camp spent Friday evening working out plans and schedule for the coming season. The plans call for many new features this year which the committee believes will make Camp Strader one of the most modern camps in the west. The following tentative schedule is announced:

June 11 to 20, for younger boys.

June 23 to July 2, younger boys.

July 7 to 16, junior high boys.

July 21 to 30, special groups.

August 4 to 13, church pioneer groups.

August 15 to 24, young men and Hi-Y retreat.

August 24 to September 1, church retreats.

September 1 to 15, college and university Y. M. C. A. cabinet retreats and famliy camp.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY.

WEARING APPAREL 65

Sheriff's Sale.

Notice is hereby given, That by virtue of an Order of Sale issued by the clerk of the District Court of the Third Judicial District of Nebraska, within and for Lancaster County, in an action wherein Conservative Investment company of Crete, Nebraska, is plaintiff, and Victor W. Herman, Alice R. Herman, Cecile Grace Thompson, Alice R. Herman as guardian of the estate and person of Esther Marie Thompson; Esther Marie Thompson; Allen W. Field as Trustee in Bankruptcy of the estate of Victor W. Herman, bankrupt; Giltner State Bank, a corporation; First National Bank of Lincoln, Nebraska, a corporation, are defendants, I will, at 2 o'clock, p. m., on the 25th day of March, A. D. 1924, at the east door of the Court House, in the City of Lincoln, Lancaster County, Nebraska, offer for sale at public auction, the following described lands and tenements, to-wit: West Thirty-six (36) feet of North Fifty (50) feet of Lot two (2), Block twenty-five (25), Lincoln, Lancaster County, Nebraska.

Given under my hand this 21st day of February, A. D. 1924.

CLAUDE P. HENSEL, Sheriff.

ARRANGED TO SHOW FILMS

they could go ahead and exhibit them?"

"I had nothing to do with those arrangements."

"What was your experience in New York state?"

"I showed the pictures at the disabled soldiers hospital at Staten Island."

"Why?"

"Because they wanted it."

"You and Rickard were arrested and fined $1,000 each?"

"Yes."

"Didn't the district attorney tell you to wait a couple of weeks until public opinion had subsided?"

"He suggested that if we were going to show them to wait a while."

"Who was it that made the suggestion? Was it Hayward himself?"

"I don't remember."

"Did Hayward hear it?"

"He must have."

"You know that the picture was shown in twenty-two or twenty-three states?"

"Around twenty-two or twenty-five states."

"Didn't you know that the department of justice was a department of easy virtue as far as these pictures were concerned and that you could sell them anywhere?" Senator Ashurst asked.

"No, I didn't know anything about that."

Quinby proved a reticent witness and it was so hard to get information that Wheeler finally said:

"Now, as a matter of fact, you are afraid that if you tell this whole story the attorney general will cause you some trouble, aren't you?"

"If he was going to cause any trouble, he would cause it anyway now. I'm telling you the truth," replied Quinby.

Orders List of States.

Chairman Brookhart ordered Quinby to give the committee a list of the twenty-two states where Quinby said arrangements were made to show the pictures, and the names of the local lawyers.

During the taking of Quinby's testimony, Senator Wheeler sent hurriedly for G. O. Holdridge of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company of Baltimore. The secretary of the committee was directed to order Holdridge to come at once to the hearing. Holdridge was a former department of justice agent.

"Yes."

"He told you he was going to show it at Ned McLean's house?"

"Yes."

"He told you Attorney General Daugherty and other cabinet members were present at the showing? Was Postmaster General New there, too?"

"Yes, he told me that."

Jesse Smith, Daugherty's confidant, had an interest in the contract between Rickard and others for distribution of the films, Quinby had been told.

AGED "SHOP GIRL" POPULAR.

TORONTO, (By Mail).—Despite her seventy-two years of age and furrowed brow Mrs. Margaret McMillan has been acclaimed as Toronto's most popular shop girl, having won over hundreds of flapper contestants.

BRADLEY MYSTERY SOLVED

NORFOLK, Neb., March 15.—The mysterious case of A. C. Bradley bachelor carpenter, who died from injuries, in a local hospital, is believed to be solved. Bradley was never in an automobile accident it is believed now, but was "hooking" a ride to the south portion of the city on a Northwestern freight train, fell off, struck his head on the ties and, because he felt that it was his fault and did not want to tell anyone how it all happened, he merely said he was in an automobile accident.

Gus Bartholomew, employe of the gas plant is the only eye witness to the accident and has identified the man falling from the train as Bradley from a photograph.

Mr. Bartholomew says he was putting his automobile into the garage at the gas plant on the evening of February 13, and he noticed a man answering Bradley's description standing on the south side of the Norfolk avenue crossing. Bartholomew after putting his car in the garage, turned about and saw the freight train moving south and he noticed the man clinging to the steps of a freight car with one hand. When the car reached the Union Pacific spur, the man fell, striking his head against a tie. Bartholomew went to his aid and walked with him to Fifth street and Madison avenue, and urged him to go to a doctor.

Bradley must have walked another block east because it was on Fourth street and Badison avenue that he was found and then taken to a doctor. Bartholomew had not heard of Bradley's death, and when he heard of it he did not connect it up with the accident he witnessed on the Northwestern freight train.

MEN AND THINGS

Telephoned-in comment: "I just read that paragraph about the kid on the sidewalk who ordered people to get out of his way as he came pushing himself along in his little wagon. I called up to tell you that I just met the kid's mother. I was down in the bank to make a deposit. About a dozen others thought of it the same time I did, and we had to line up. A woman came in to make a deposit. She halted at the sight of the line, but not for long. She stepped up and horned herself third in line. It was sure the kid's mother. Thought you'd like to know."

The census figures are startling incomplete. We consulted them the other day and couldn't find anything there to indicate whether there were more people belonging to the "can't-be-done" family than in the "I-wish-I-could" group. Both, of course, belong to the same general family of those who never accomplish anything. The "wish-I-coulds" envy others their ability to make a success in life, but content themselves with merely wishing they could do as well without having to take the trouble of trying it out and seeing what they could accomplish.

A Red Willow county woman who became angered over the furnishing of liquor to her husband armed herself and used the gun on the man she said was doing it. Her attorney presented the defense that she was mentally deranged when she did it. The jury accepted this as true, and sent her to the hospital for the insane. Three weeks later, as the dispatches tell the story, the same attorney who had secured her release from the terrors of the law on the ground that she was insane was successful in getting her out of the insane hospital by proving that she was not insane. Query: Do the lawyers say that this conduct is entirely ethical and proper?

How hard do you struggle against doing any thinking when it is forced on you? Isn't this one of the reasons why so many of us cut such a small figure in the world and why we make so little a splash when we leave it? We all suffer under the delusion that taking it by and you we do a lot of thinking in the course of a year, but our conduct is witness against us. This is shown by the readiness with which we pattern our dress and our demeanor and our expressions after others. If we did our own thinking more, would we follow so many false gods off into the political and economical wildernesses? Thinking, real constructive thinking, is hard work. How few of us really like hard work!

Tom Masson, who has manufactured more humorous skits than any other of our literary industrialists, says that every good writer is a reporter. The statement is crammed full of truth. There are those both in and out of the profession who have a sort of casual contempt for the reporter. To them the title of editor carries a dignity and a renown that contrasts strangely with the title of reporter. Editing is, in fact, the easiest part of the newspaper business, and oftimes we think it is the next to the least useful. You read what somebody else says, and then disagree with him as brilliantly as you can. The real information is carried to the reader by the reporter, the writer who stands around where things are happening or thoughts being spilled and who carries them to the reader in accurate and interesting form.

A recent paragraph in this column stated, in the course of comment on another subject, that the draft showed 27 per cent of the men to have been infected by venereal diseases. Commander Taylor of the Nebraska Legion, challenges the accuracy of the figures, the source of which is not now recalled. Dr. Bartholomew, in charge of the state division, to whom recourse was had for the purpose of information, says that this statement, which has been oft-repeated, is based not on the average, but on the highest for any city, which was Savannah, with 27.64 per cent. The surgeon general's report show the correct average percentage at all mobilization camps was 5.6 per cent.

The same report gives the percentage for Nebraska is the second million draft at 3.5 per cent. Lincoln's percentage was 4.19 and Omaha 5.28. In commenting on the figures Dr. Bartholomew says: "These figures are manifestly all low, as they are ovbious cases of disease, cases that could be detected by an observer, no laboratory tests being made. Furthermore a large number of infected men were rejected by draft boards and did not reach mobilization camps. These are not included in the surgeon general's reports."

BRAIN TESTS

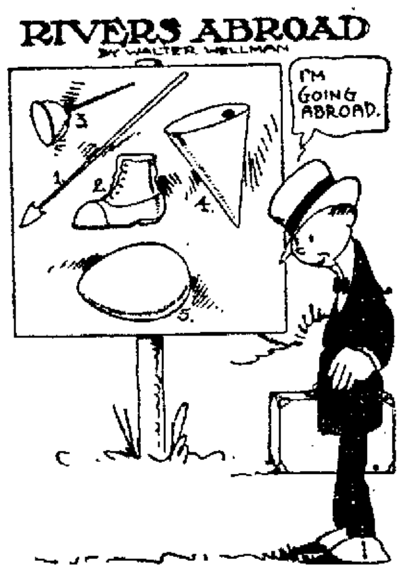
(By Sam Loyd.)

8 Minutes to Answer This.

Take a stick, add a region rich in gold, add a piece of clothing, add a numeral, subtract an elongated apodal fish, subtract a girl's name, subtract a gentle bird, subtract a rock, and a measure of weight and the resulting letters will spell the name of an important city of China.

Answer to Yesterday's.

It does not take much time to prove by simple addition that 101,000 feet or a little more than 19 miles must be traveled to gather 100 potatoes placed 10 feet apart and carry them, one at a time, to a basket placed 10 feet back of the first potato. The simple method is to take the average distance of 1,010 feet and multiply by 100.



Take one letter from the name of the first object, one from the second, one from the third, etc., and have the name of a river abroad. Repeat, and have another foreign river. Repeat again and have another foreign river. Repeat still again, and have a fourth foreign river. What are the four?

Answer to yesterday's puzzle: DARLING and GARONNE.
